

New Russian Maneuver To Split West Germany Scented

WASHINGTON, June 16—(AP)—Under the threat of a possible new Russian drive to split the West, United States officials have started a series of talks with British and French representatives on problems dividing the three powers.

Korea, Indochina and Germany are high on the list.

And the talks get added urgency from the weekend disclosure that Moscow is assigning its chief deputy foreign minister, Andrei Gromyko, to be ambassador to London.

This looks to some officials like a major new Russian move in the cold war and, more than likely, one aimed at disrupting the U. S.-British-French alliance.

Against this background, the Big Three powers will discuss, among other things:

1. France's desire for increased American help in carrying on its billion-dollar-a-year war in Indochina. This was expected to be the main theme of conferences to be held by Jean LeTourneau, French minister for relations with the Indochinese States, who had an appointment with Secretary of State Acheson today.

The Frenchman also is seeking to learn from State and Defense Department officials how much assistance the United States will give in case of a massive Chinese Communist attack on Indochina.

2. The conduct of Korean truce negotiations and the handling of Communist prisoners of war.

These matters are expected to be taken up by the British defense minister, Lord Alexander, who is expected here to see Defense Secretary Lovett and other top American officials next week. Alexander is in Korea for a personal look at the situation. There has been growing criticism in Britain of the way the Korean sector of the struggle with Communism is being run, and the feeling has been voiced that if Britain had had a larger role it might have been run better.

3. How soon and under what conditions the Western Powers should offer to meet with Russia to discuss German issues. These are the key questions to be answered in the preparation here, beginning early this week, of a new move to Moscow on German unification and peace. The Russians have been pressing for talks. The Western Powers have taken the position that the Reds must first agree to a nation-wide political survey of Germany. Recently, however, there have been indications the French and perhaps the British thought a meeting of Big Four officials might be held anyway.

4. A review of the whole range of Allied difficulties, undoubtedly including the Korean, Russian-German and Indochinese as well as other problems. This is expected to be held by the British, French and American foreign ministers when Acheson goes to London in little more than a week.

Taft-Kefauver Word Battle Is Hottest Yet

Gloves-Off Debate Is Staged On TV And It Gets Rough

WASHINGTON, June 16—(AP)—If it should be Taft of Ohio vs. Kefauver of Tennessee in the main presidential bout, you can look for a free-swinging battle right up to the knockout.

The two senators staged a gloves-off demonstration of this on television Sunday night. When it ended, the perspiring Taft called it the hottest broadcast of the year—and apparently he wasn't talking about the weather.

"Slur!" Republican Taft cried at one point.

"Then I'll take it back," Democrat Kefauver offered.

That was easily the greatest display of senatorial courtesy that occurred as the legislators—each leading his party in the number of convention delegates—debated foreign policy and a slate full of other issues on "American Forum of the Air."

Once Kefauver called Taft an isolationist.

"On, no, no," the Ohioan objected.

Again, Kefauver—who gained fame as a televised crime-prober—said it's necessary to weed out racketeers and fixers at all levels.

"Sen. Kefauver and I seem to agree," Taft interjected, "that we ought to throw the administration out on the issue of dishonesty."

The series of barbed exchanges wound up a busy day for both candidates.

Taft had been on television earlier and he said, among other things, that it's now or never so far as his presidential hopes are concerned.

"I'm 62 years old," he said, "and I'll never run for president again."

But he said he thinks he has just about enough votes to win the nomination this time.

What about Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's description of himself, in a Detroit speech Saturday, as a "no-deal" candidate?

TAFT SAID he has made no deals, either—and owes no political debts to anyone.

Was it quite cricket, he was asked. (Continued on Page Two)

War In Korea Is Stepped Up; Reds Stopped

SEOUL, Korea, June 16—(AP)—Infantrymen of the U. S. 45th Division today smashed an artillery-supported Chinese attack on a hill formation on the Western Front. The five-day old battle has cost the Reds more than 1,000 casualties.

The reinforced Americans knocked back about 750 Chinese in a bitter seven-hour scrap.

Fighting also continued at a stepped-up pace at other friction spots on the 155-mile front. There were brisk clashes Sunday near Panmunjom, Korangpo and Yonchon in the West; around Kumhwa Kim-song and the Pukhan River in the center; and near the Punch Bowl in the East.

U. S. Eighth Army staff officers have offered no explanation of the stepped-up fighting, the toughest of the year.

Radar Now Used To Check Speeders

COLUMBUS, June 16—(AP)—From now on it won't pay to argue with a State Highway Patrolman about how fast you were driving—if it ever did.

The Highway Patrol has started using radar in its cruisers to check speeders. Radar records much more accurately than a speedometer how fast a car travels.

Break In Heat Is Now In Prospect

By The Associated Press

Cool air moved through the Northern Rocky Mountains today, spread to the North and Central Plains, and was due to reach the Upper Mississippi Valley by nightfall.

It brought welcome relief from four days of Turkish bath weather—a combination of heat and humidity that covered at least portions of three fourths of the states Sunday.

Temperatures of 100 or more were recorded in at least 17 states—Tennessee, Missouri, Nebraska,

Iowa, Kansas, Colorado, Indiana, Texas, Arizona, Alabama, South Dakota, Oklahoma, New Mexico, California, Mississippi, Kentucky and Illinois.

Only Northern New England, Wisconsin, Minnesota, the Northern Rockies, and the Pacific coast escaped thermometer readings of 90 or more.

The surge of cool air will return temperatures to seasonal normals, the weather bureau in Chicago said. It was bringing scattered thundershowers in the Eastern Dakotas, Nebraska, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Northwestern Iowa.

Work-Play Policy Planned For Koje When Rioting Ends

Britain's Minister Of Defense Inspects POW Stockades While Prisoners Put Into Small Units

KOJE ISLAND, Korea, June 16—(AP)—The U. S. Eighth Army plans an extensive work-and-play program for Communist prisoners of war on Koje once the POWs recognize Allied authority completely.

Brig. Gen. Haydon L. Boatner, Koje commander, hopes to start the program soon after he finishes inspecting the present large, unruly compounds into small units.

The dispersal operations probably will be completed within a week.

Field Marshal Lord Alexander,

Britain's minister of defense, inspected the POW stockades Monday. He toured the island in a jeep driven by Boatner.

Alexander was accompanied by Gen. James A. Van Fleet, U. S. Eighth Army commander, and a party of leading military and diplomatic figures.

The group drove through the ruins of Compound 76 where more than 6,000 prisoners fought desperately to prevent being broken up into small units. Boatner told Alexander it was "a hell of a fight."

ALEXANDER made no public statement while on Koje.

But Selwyn Lloyd, British minister of state for foreign affairs, said "obviously the situation is being cleared up very fast and a great deal of good work is being done."

Alexander's party returned to the Korean mainland.

Once he has uncontested control over the prisoners, Boatner plans to use POW labor on road construction and other engineering projects. He also plans to expand athletic and other recreational facilities inside compounds. Sports equipment has been ordered.

Eighth Army officers stress that there will be no relaxation of the new firm policy in handling POWs.

The basic policy governing operation of Koje prison camps is strict adherence to the Geneva Convention.

Of Koje's present POW population of 80,000, some 30,000 will be moved soon to other islands off South Korea.

Outside Business Of Ferguson Cited

CLEVELAND, June 16—(AP)—Mayor James A. Rhodes of Columbus, the Republican candidate for state auditor, declared today his opponent is a stockholder in Doyle Press, Inc., a printing organization in Madison County.

Rhodes made his statement at a party rally.

He said Joseph T. Ferguson, the Democratic incumbent, has not been devoting "full time and attention to the business for which the auditor was elected."

Rhodes said corporate records showed stock in Doyle Press was issued to "the auditor on or about Aug. 22, 1951."

Mother Dies Of Broken Heart; Body Found Two Months Later

HOLLYWOOD, June 16—(AP)—A broken heart was the only reason police could give today for the death of Mrs. Mignonette June Selig, 55, whose body was found in her bedroom Saturday, an estimated two months after she died.

Neighbors told police Mrs. Selig had been grieving for her son Wayne, who was killed in Army action overseas during World War II. When Wayne left for war, Mrs. Selig promised she would leave him just as it was until he returned. She kept that promise.

Ike Insists Expenses Can Be Cut But Taft And Truman Disagree

By The Associated Press

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower arrived in Denver Sunday to the cheers of 100,000 persons who greeted him and his wife. The general will open political headquarters in a final drive for the GOP presidential nomination.

Before leaving for Denver, he told a Detroit news conference that he disagreed with Sen. Robert A. Taft on the issue of confidence in the joint chiefs of staff; made it clear he would not, if elected president, bring Gen. Douglas MacArthur into the government. Taft has said he would defend his previous statement that it is possible to cut the federal budget by as much as 40 billion dollars in the next few years.

Taft said any such cut was impossible. President Truman said the same thing in a speech Saturday, and Sen. Estes Kefauver said Eisenhower must have been thinking of something else when he made the remark.

But Eisenhower insisted he meant what he said: The cut could be made by reducing all government spending, including military outlays.

Before setting out on a final drive for the GOP nomination, Eisenhower scheduled a relatively quiet day in Denver.

He planned to brush up on his golf and relax, calling off all public appearances except for a brief breakfast meeting of Western farm editors and a steak dinner with reporters late in the day.

IN HIS Detroit press conference, Eisenhower said he: Favored lowering the voting age from 21 to 18 years; is "very, very hopeful" no more American troops will have to be sent abroad; believes the U. S. should build its military strength until it can show the world "we are strong enough to be unafraid."

New Democratic delegates will be named today in Georgia—among the last of either party to be decided upon. The 28-vote delegation to the national Democratic convention is being named by the Georgia state party committee with instructions to vote for the state's Sen. Richard B. Russell at the national convention.

Tuesday Democrats in the District of Columbia, who have no vote in elections, will hold a primary to name six delegates to the convention.

Scheduled selection of three delegates in Puerto Rico next Sunday will just about wind up the GOP picking. Only 10 more of the 1,206 remain to be named. That will be done in Illinois on June 23.

In Maine's primary Monday, Sen. Owen Brewster, a Taft supporter, seeking his third term, faces stiff opposition from Eisenhower supporter Gov. Frederick G. Payne. Nomination in Maine is usually equivalent to election. The Taft-Eisenhower fight has now been injected into the campaign—a bitter battle marked by charges of lies, conspiracy and hate campaigns.

Justice Dept. Hit By Shakeup

WASHINGTON, June 16—(AP)—A broad reorganization of the government's legal branch, the Justice Department, appeared in the making Monday in the wake of three new resignations by top officials.

Out of office Saturday went exactly half of the six assistant attorneys general:

Harold I. Baynton, 48-year-old Nevada who headed the Office of Alien Property. His unit had been under congressional attack.

H. Graham Morrison, 45, of Johnson City, Tenn., and Bristol, Va., head of the Anti-Trust Division.

William A. Underhill, 42, of Deland Fla., chief of the Lands Division.

PRESIDENT Truman's new attorney general, James P. McGranery, announced in Philadelphia that the resignations had been accepted.

McGranery succeeded J. Howard McGrath as head of the Justice Department at the crest of a corruption-in-government uproar that had led to the ouster of still another assistant, T. Lamar Caudle, fired by the President himself.

The departure of the three others was less dramatic.

When McGranery took office May 27, all division heads submitted "courtesy resignations," so that the new chief might have a free hand in organizing his department.

McGranery announced Saturday, without elaboration, that three of these resignations were being accepted.

Those leaving, for a return to private law practice, all served under both McGrath and his predecessor, Tom Clark, now a Supreme Court Justice.

Rep. Hillings (R-Calif.) a member of the House Committee investigating the Justice Department, was among those forecasting additional top-level changes "in the very near future."

Man Grilled On Killing In Lonely Cabin

LOGAN, W. Va., June 16—(AP)—State police questioned a 38-year-old man further today in a triple slaying discovered yesterday in a lonely mountain cabin six miles from this mining center.

No charges have been filed against him, but state police say they believe he was in the area of the death shack Saturday night.

All three victims were shot in the head with a rifle. They were Vicie Lucinda White, 24-year-old widow of John White, who was slain last March; Ervin Schoolcraft, 32, owner of the cabin, and Melvin Baisden, 75, a neighbor.

George White, John White's nephew, entered a guilty plea to voluntary manslaughter in his uncle's death, saying he had threatened him. He was sentenced last week to one to five years in prison.

IN 1916, BILL CARLISLE, now 62, held up three Union Pacific railroad trains in Wyoming, was captured and sentenced to life imprisonment. He escaped in 1919, held up another UP train, was shot through the hand and lung, and returned to prison at Rawlins, Wyo. He was freed in 1936 and given a full pardon in 1947. Recently he visited the UP museum in Omaha to check the authenticity of a .38 caliber revolver displayed as the one he used. "It's mine, all right," he told museum director Mrs. Ruth C. Hamilton. "I bought it in a Laramie pawn shop." Carlisle, his wife and adopted daughter operate a tourist camp at Laramie, Wyo.

Munitions Dump In Korea Blows Up

HAEUNDE, Korea, June 16—(AP)—A U. S. soldier was killed today and 33 other persons were missing or injured in thunderous explosions in the U. S. Army's biggest ammunition dump in Korea.

Two American soldiers are missing and four have been hospitalized, an official Army announcement said. Twenty-four others suffered minor hurts and returned to duty after first aid.

At least three Korean civilians were injured, added the announcement from the U. S. Second Logistical command.

South Korean police said they suspected sabotage by guerrillas.

The first blast—cause unknown—broke windows and knocked down plaster in buildings in Pusan, 13 miles south. Two other huge explosions followed within 15 minutes. There was a fourth blast later.

Fires mushroomed in the area.

REDs Blamed For Blocking Truce Parley

MUNSAN, Korea, June 16—(AP)—The senior United Nations truce negotiator today charged the Communists with responsibility for Red prisoner of war riots and for continuing "a bloody and profitless war."

Maj. Gen. William K. Harrison accused the Red delegates at a fruitless 22-minute session of directing "your captured personnel at Koje Island to endanger their lives to further your nefarious schemes."

Hundreds of captured Reds have been killed or wounded on Koje in Communist-led riots.

The key issue blocking a truce is the UN stand that no prisoner be forcibly repatriated. Only 70,000 of 169,000 captured Reds have expressed willingness to return to Red rule.

CINCINNATI, June 16—(AP)—A move to bring the national headquarters of the Fraternal Order of Eagles to Cincinnati was well underway.

The Ohio State Aerie, at its convention which ended Sunday, backed the move with a pledge of $10,000 toward the cost of moving headquarters from Kansas City.

Fighting also continued at a stepped-up pace at other friction spots on the 155-mile front. There were brisk clashes Sunday near Panmunjom, Korangpo and Yonchon in the West; around Kumbwa Kim-song and the Pukhan River in the center, and near the Punch Bowl in the East.

U. S. Eighth Army staff officers have offered no explanation of the stepped-up fighting, the toughest of the year.

Radar Now Used To Check Speeders

COLUMBUS, June 16.—From now on it won't pay to argue with a State Highway Patrolman about how fast you were driving—if it ever did.

The Highway Patrol has started using radar in its cruisers to check speeders. Radar records much more accurately than a speedometer how fast a car travels.

Break In Heat Is Now In Prospect

By The Associated Press

Cool air moved through the Northern Rocky Mountains today, spread to the North and Central Plains, and was due to reach the Upper Mississippi Valley by night-fall.

It brought welcome relief from four days of Turkish bath weather—a combination of heat and humidity that covered at least portions of three fourths of the states Sunday.

Temperatures of 100 or more were recorded in at least 17 states—Tennessee, Missouri, Nebraska,

Iowa, Kansas, Colorado, Indiana, Texas, Arizona, Alabama, South Dakota, Oklahoma, New Mexico, California, Mississippi, Kentucky and Illinois.

Only Northern New England, Wisconsin, Minnesota, the Northern Rockies, and the Pacific coast escaped thermometer readings of 90 or more.

The surge of cool air will return temperatures to seasonal normals, the weather bureau in Chicago said. It was bringing scattered thundershowers in the Eastern Dakotas, Nebraska, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Northwestern Iowa.

Work-Play Policy Planned For Koje When Rioting Ends

Britain's Minister Of Defense Inspects POW Stockades While Prisoners Put Into Small Units

KOJE ISLAND, Korea, June 16.—The U. S. Eighth Army plans an extensive work-and-play program for Communist prisoners of war on Koje once the POWs recognize Allied authority completely.

Brig. Gen. Haydon L. Boatner, Koje commander, hopes to start the program soon after he finishes his present large, unruly compounds into small units.

The dispersal operations probably will be completed within a week.

Field Marshal Lord Alexander,

Britain's minister of defense, inspected the POW stockades Monday. He toured the island in a jeep driven by Boatner.

Alexander was accompanied by Gen. James A. Van Fleet, U. S. Eighth Army commander, and a party of leading military and diplomatic figures.

The group drove through the ruins of Compound 76 where more than 6,000 prisoners fought desperately to prevent being broken up into small units. Boatner told Alexander it was "a hell of a fight."

ALEXANDER made no public statement while on Koje.

But Selwyn Lloyd, British minister of state for foreign affairs, said "obviously the situation is being cleared up very fast and a great deal of good work is being done."

Alexander's party returned to the Korean mainland.

Once he has uncontested control over the prisoners, Boatner plans to use POW labor on road construction and other engineering projects. He also plans to expand athletic and other recreational facilities inside compounds. Sports equipment has been ordered.

Eighth Army officers stress that there will be no relaxation of the new firm policy in handling POWs.

The basic policy governing operation of Koje prison camps is strict adherence to the Geneva Convention.

Of Koje's present POW population of 80,000, some 30,000 will be moved soon to other islands off South Korea.

Outside Business Of Ferguson Cited

CLEVELAND, June 16.—Mayor James A. Rhodes of Columbus, the Republican candidate for state auditor, declared today his opponent is a stockholder in Doyle Press, Inc., a printing organization in Madison County.

Rhodes made his statement at a party rally.

He said Joseph T. Ferguson, the Democratic incumbent, has not been devoting "full time and attention to the business for which the auditor was elected."

Rhodes said corporate records showed stock in Doyle Press was issued to "the auditor on or about Aug. 22, 1951."

Mother Dies Of Broken Heart; Body Found Two Months Later

HOLLYWOOD, June 16.—A broken heart was the only reason police could give today for the death of Mrs. Mignonette June Selig, 55, whose body was found in her bedroom Saturday, an estimated two months after she died.

Neighbors told police Mrs. Selig had been grieving for her son Wayne, who was killed in Army action overseas during World War II. When Wayne left for war, Mrs. Selig promised she would leave his room just as it was until he returned. She kept that promise.

On a dust-covered chest of drawers was a company of marching toy soldiers headed toward the door Wayne left open. Beside them was a model construction set. A chemistry set and Wayne's bicycle lay nearby.

Police poked through hip-deep piles of toys and other mementos stuffed in shopping bags. The shopping bags littered tables, the kitchen, the dining room and half filled the bathroom.

Some bags were filled with bright shirts, socks and neckties. Police located Mrs. Selig's brother, who could tell them little. Of the boy he said:

"He was a bright boy and a good boy. That's all I know."

Ike Insists Expenses Can Be Cut But Taft And Truman Disagree

By The Associated Press

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower arrived in Denver Sunday to the cheers of 100,000 persons who greeted him and his wife. The general will open political headquarters in a final drive for the GOP presidential nomination.

Before leaving for Denver, he told a Detroit news conference that he disagreed with Sen. Robert A. Taft on the issue of confidence in the joint chiefs of staff; made it clear he would not, if elected president, bring Gen. Douglas MacArthur into the government. Taft has said he would defend his previous statement that it is possible to cut the federal budget by as much as 40 billion dollars in the next few years.

Taft said any such cut was impossible, President Truman said the same thing in a speech Saturday, and Sen. Estes Kefauver said Eisenhower must have been thinking of something else when he made the remark.

But Eisenhower insisted he meant what he said: The cut could be made by reducing all government spending, including military outlays.

Before setting out on a final drive for the GOP nomination, Eisenhower scheduled a relatively quiet day in Denver.

He planned to brush up on his golf and relax, calling off all public appearances except for a brief breakfast meeting of Western farm editors and a steak dinner with reporters late in the day.

IN HIS Detroit press conference,

Eisenhower said he: Favored lowering the voting age from 21 to 18 years; is "very, very hopeful" no more American troops will have to be sent abroad; believes the U. S. should build its military strength until it can show the world "we are strong enough to be unafraid."

New Democratic delegates will be named today in Georgia—among the last of either party to be decided upon. The 28-vote delegation to the national Democratic convention is being named by the Georgia state party committee with instructions to vote for the state's Sen. Richard B. Russell at the national convention.

Tuesday Democrats in the District of Columbia, who have no vote in elections, will hold a primary to name six delegates to the convention.

Scheduled selection of three delegates in Puerto Rico next Sunday will just about wind up the GOP picking. Only 10 more of the 1,296 remain to be named. That will be done in Illinois on June 23.

In Maine's primary Monday, Sen. Owen Brewster, a Taft supporter, seeking his third term, faces stiff opposition from Eisenhower supporter Gov. Frederick G. Payne. Nomination in Maine is usually equivalent to election. The Taft-Eisenhower fight has now been injected into the campaign—a bitter battle marked by charges of lies, conspiracy and hate campaigns.

THE CIVIL rights issue popped up on two fronts Sunday:

Kefauver's California presidential delegation, with 68 votes at the national convention, came out firmly for a compulsory fair employment practices act. Kefauver has said he believes in civil rights legislation, and would support FEPC if it is in the party platform, although he does not believe it should be made compulsory.

The New Jersey delegation to the Democratic convention—26 delegates with 32 votes—unanimously committed itself to a strong civil rights plank in the party platform.

Man Grilled On Killing In Lonely Cabin

LOGAN, W. Va., June 16.—State police questioned a 38-year-old man further today in a triple slaying discovered yesterday in a lonely mountain cabin six miles from this mining center.

No charges have been filed against him, but state police say they believe he was in the area of the death shack Saturday night.

All three victims were shot in the head with a rifle. They were Vicie Lucinda White, 24-year-old widow of John White, who was slain last March; Ervin Schoolcraft, 32, owner of the cabin, and Melvin Baisden, 75, a neighbor.

George White, John White's nephew, entered a guilty plea to voluntary manslaughter in his uncle's death, saying he had threatened him. He was sentenced last week to one to five years in prison.

IN 1916, BILL CARLISLE, now 62, held up three Union Pacific railroad trains in Wyoming, was captured and sentenced to life imprisonment. He escaped in 1919, held up another U. P. train, was shot through the hand and lung, and returned to prison at Rawlins, Wyo. He was freed in 1936 and given a full pardon in 1947. Recently he visited the U. P. museum in Omaha to check the authenticity of a .38 caliber revolver displayed as the one he used. "It's mine, all right," he told museum director Mrs. Ruth C. Hamilton. "I bought it in a Laramie pawn shop." Carlisle, his wife and adopted daughter operate a tourist camp at Laramie, Wyo.

Munitions Dump In Korea Blows Up

HAERUNDE, Korea, June 16.—A U. S. soldier was killed today and 33 other persons were missing or injured in thunderous explosions in the U. S. Army's biggest ammunition dump in Korea.

Two American soldiers are missing and four have been hospitalized, an official Army announcement said. Twenty-four others suffered minor hurts and returned to duty after first aid.

At least three Korean civilians were injured, added the announcement from the U. S. Second Logistics command.

South Korean police said they suspected sabotage by guerrillas.

The first blast—cause unknown—broke windows and knocked down plaster in buildings in Pusan, 13 miles south. Two other huge explosions followed within 15 minutes. There was a fourth blast later.

Fires mushroomed in the area.

Dover Publisher Claimed By Death

NEW PHILADELPHIA, June 16.—Funeral services will be held Tuesday for Francis L. Bixler, former publisher of the Dover Daily Reporter and founder of the Bixler Tours. He died Sunday at 77.

Bixler published the Reporter from 1905-1919. He started the tour service in 1926 and ran it until 1950.

U. S. Kids Shock Englishman

LONDON, June 16.—British philosopher Cyril E. M. Joad clucks his tongue disapprovingly at American kids in their cowboy suits and bobby socks. And he has a sigh of pity for them, too.

"Poor little brutes," he sighed—loud enough to be heard by the 2½ million subscribers of the Sunday Dispatch, which carries his column.

The head of London University's School of Philosophy said American youngsters eat their cake too early and get through it too quickly. It is "this too-early maturity in this matter of manners, customs, habits and dress in Americans which makes them reach such an early, uninteresting and uniform

Gray clouds of phosphorus smoke rose into the sky. Rockets shot wildly about. Exploding flares touched up the scene with bright colors. Some shells and flares flew two miles. Grass fires flamed up in the dry hills ringing the area.

Some 30,000 residents of Haerunde—their thatched-roof houses on fire—and nearby villages took off for safer areas.

Reds Blamed For Blocking Truce Parley

MUNSAN, Korea, June 16.—The senior United Nations truce negotiator today charged the Communists with responsibility for Red prisoner of war riots and for continuing "a bloody and profitless war."

Maj. Gen. William K. Harrison accused the Red delegates at a fruitless 22-minute session of directing "your captured personnel at Koje Island to endanger their lives to further your nefarious schemes."

Hundreds of captured Reds have been killed or wounded on Koje in Communist-led riots.

The key issue blocking a truce is the UN stand that no prisoner be forcibly repatriated. Only 70,000 of 169,000 captured Reds have expressed willingness to return to Red rule.

Because they are spoiled and abhor exercise, they grow up stoop-shouldered, he contended. Their "pale, pasty faces are due to the incredibly high temperatures which, by means of central heating, they maintain in their houses."

WHAT SHOCKED Joad was the appearance of a planeload of American "war baby" children who arrived here last week to visit their British grandparents—"little boys of 7 years old dressed in check suits, long trousers and blue trilby snap brim hats; children in cowboy suits and bobby socks; children in violent tartans."

Crew Rescued From Sea By German Ship

Angry Swedes Spit At Soviet Embassy; Protest Is Made

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, June 16.—An unarmed Swedish military plane was shot down today by two Russian Mig-15 fighters but its seven-man crew was rescued later at sea by a German merchant ship, the Swedish Air Force Command announced.

Two of the crew were reported wounded. The men said they had been attacked seven times by the Russians.

The plane, a slow flying unarmed Catalina rescue boat, had been searching for a Swedish Air Force transport missing since Friday with eight men aboard. It was feared that this plane, too, had been downed by the Russians, who are reported holding vast air-sea maneuvers off the Soviet Baltic coast.

Sweden made a strong protest to Russia over the shooting down of the plane in the Baltic about 60 miles off the Estonia coast. It was received at the Swedish foreign office by Soviet Ambassador Constantin Rodionov.

ANGRY Swedes who had gathered outside the Soviet embassy jeered Rodionov and spit into the embassy compound.

Prime Minister Tage Erlander, who is acting foreign minister, received Rodionov and presented him with the protest, which demanded immediate investigation and punishment of those responsible for the outrage.

Previous reports to the Air Force told of empty life rafts being found about 95 miles off the Swedish coast, in the area where the Catalina was attacked.

The pilot of the Catalina radioed that he was fired upon and hit by the two Red jets and was trying to make it back to Sweden. Another Swedish plane saw the Catalina a few minutes later flying low in a westerly direction.

Said Prime Minister Erlander: "I regret with all my heart what has happened to the young Air Force men and families. I have no further statement to make until I have a fuller report of the accident." Soviet Ambassador Constantin Rodionov was expected to be called to the Swedish foreign ministry, possibly to receive a strong protest.

The Swedish Air Force said that among the craft searching for the missing Catalina are fighter planes fully equipped for battle.

Eagles Moving Headquarters Now

CINCINNATI, June 16.—A move to bring the national headquarters of the Fraternal Order of Eagles to Cincinnati was well underway.

The Ohio State Aerie, at its convention which ended Sunday, backed the move with a pledge of $10,000 toward the cost of moving headquarters from Kansas City.

"This means that the taste of those who dress them is itself the taste of children, for it is children—and, may one add, savages and birds—who are always attracted by anything which is bright, startling, staring and different. . . . The professor was sorrowful that the English mothers of the tots 'should have had the native good taste, which we hope they took with them to America, so rapidly corrupted.'"

Joad said American kids of 14 were acting as if they were grown up—having dates and driving cars. He said he and most of his friends turned 20 "without ever having had a drink or kissed a girl," and that's the way it should be.

World Today

By James Marlow
Associated Press
News Analyst

WASHINGTON, June 16—(P)—Win or lose, at least Sen. Taft has had expert help in trying for the presidency. The men around him are a bunch of pros.

There are two Taft headquarters. The one here, the political headquarters, is called the "Taft Committee. The other, in New York, is named "Citizens for Taft." Eisenhower has a political headquarters here and another in New York, called "Citizens for Eisenhower."

In addition to regularly paid staffs, both men get office help from volunteers. And there are various Taft and Eisenhower organizations around the country.

Taft's cousin, David S. Ingalls, is chairman of the Taft Committee here. The New York headquarters is headed by Lt. Gen. Albert Wedemeyer, the only non-pro in this story.

Like Taft, his cousin Ingalls is an Ohioan, a lawyer, and a Yale man. Besides time spent as a Navy captain and undersecretary of the Navy, the gray-haired, pleasant Ingalls has been in politics since the 1920s. He helped Taft in his successful campaign for reelection to the Senate in 1930.

THOMAS E. Coleman, a lean and sharp-eyed industrialist from Madison, Wis., is one of the key men around Taft. He was Harold Stassen's campaign manager in 1948, when Stassen got nowhere. He's in charge of Taft's campaign in the Midwest, where he's been in politics a long time. The Taft people picked him to be their floor manager at the convention.

Still in his 30s, Richard L. Guy-lay handles Taft's publicity. Although his regular job is with a New York public relations firm, he's no political amateur either. He steered Taft's publicity in that 1950 campaign.

Then there's John D. M. Hamilton, who was chairman of the Republican National Committee back in the 1930s when Gov. Alf Landon got the Republican nomination but lost in crashing defeat to President Roosevelt.

Two other top Taft lieutenants are congressmen: Clarence Brown, an Ohio publisher, and Carroll Reece of Tennessee, who has been an educator as well as a politician. Both have been in politics for years.

As Dewey's failures showed, the pros around you can't always win you the presidency. But they're a big help in getting you the nomination.

Two Bridge Jobs Listed In County

Two bridge projects in the southern sector of Pickaway County are listed in the latest bulletin of the state highway department.

Work was under way as follows:

Route 361—Kingston Northwest road, bridge construction west of Route 159 Junction. A temporary bridge and run-around is provided.

Route 138 — Clarksburg-Circleville road, repairing bridge northeast of Clarksburg. A good temporary route is provided, adding one mile in distance.

Pony Rider, 16, Fractures Hand

Carl Lindsey, 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lindsey of Circleville Route 2, was injured Friday when he was thrown from a pony.

He was given treatment in Berger hospital for a fractured left hand and returned to his home.

Ohio Newspaper Association Attacks Curbs On Information

COLUMBUS, June 16—(P)—Steps were taken by the Ohio Newspaper Association Monday to procure full and unrestricted access to information about top governmental activities in Ohio down to transactions of school boards and township trustees.

Appointment of a freedom of information committee, representing metropolitan, medium daily and weekly newspapers was announced by R. Kenneth Kerr, president of the ONA.

"Newspapers throughout the nation are awakening to the public's serious lack of freedom of information, from the federal level to the smallest school board," said Kerr.

Four Drunken Drivers Lose Licenses Here

Four drunken drivers have lost their driving privileges following trials in Pickaway County common pleas court.

Stiffest penalty was meted out to John M. Short, 34, of Kingston, who was arrested following an accident on Kingston Pike at Scippo Creek bridge.

Short was fined $100 and costs ($75 suspended), sentenced to 30 days in jail (suspended) and lost his right to apply for a license for another year for drunken driving.

In addition, he was fined $200 and costs ($150 suspended) and sentenced to 90 days in jail (87 days suspended) for driving after his license had been revoked.

Clinton Smith, 43, of Circleville Route 3, was fined $100 and costs ($75 suspended), 30 days in jail (suspended) and lost his driving privileges for six months.

CLARENCE Conway, 60, of Ashville, was fined $100 and costs ($75 suspended), sentenced to 30 days in jail (suspended) and lost his driving rights for six months.

And Alvin Ritsley, 38, of Columbus, was fined $100 and costs ($75 suspended), 30 days in jail (suspended) and lost his license for one year.

All four drivers appeared before the court of Judge Earl Parker on affidavits filed by Prosecutor Guy Cliffe.

Taft-Kefauver Word Battle Is Hottest Yet

ed, to choose a Taft supporter, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, as the GOP convention keynoter?

Taft said it would be hard to find somebody who hasn't taken sides. The thing to do, he added, was to find the best man for the job.

Kefauver also took part in an earlier Sunday telecast—playing a real life Father's Day role with his children, his wife Nancy, his 81-year-old father and sundry friends sharing the camera view of the senator's back yard.

It was all as relaxed as malted milk at bedtime, but Mrs. Kefauver confided that it still was too exciting for her tastes.

After the Chicago convention, win or lose, she said, "we're going down to the farm in Tennessee and take off our shoes and really relax."

Kefauver himself had a word—"ridiculous"—for Eisenhower's statement that the federal budget can be reduced some 40 billion dollars in the next few years.

"I think he must have been thinking about something else," Kefauver said.

His daughter Diane didn't get into the backyard act, but the camera picked her up, looking somewhat wistfully out of an upstairs window.

She had mumps.

Lutheran Bible School Enters Final Week

Daily Vacation Bible School classes in Trinity Lutheran church began their third and final week Monday.

The enrollment of more than 300 pupils is the largest in the history of the program.

Two of the annual Bible School events have already been held. On Friday morning of the first week, the "early bird breakfast" was held in Ted Lewis Park, with about 175 youngsters present. Then, last Friday, the annual bicycle hike was held for the older pupils. There were about 100 children who cycled to Pickaway County Fairgrounds, where they had a picnic supper.

Monday is family night, and all pupils and their parents are invited to be in the church at 7 p. m. The program will consist of educational, religious and comedy films.

At 7 p. m. Thursday, the parish house will be the scene of a display of the work of the pupils. Projects of all departments will be shown. This will be accompanied by a program given by the students to acquaint the parents further with the work of the Bible School.

FRIDAY IS the final day of the Bible school. There will be a picnic at Gold Cliff Park. The children will meet in the parish house at 9 a. m. and go to the park for swimming and skating. They will return home after a picnic lunch.

Bible school program for 1952 will officially end with a special Bible school service Sunday morning, at which time certificates will be awarded.

16 Violators Fined $360 In County Courts

Last weekend's torrid temperatures and the holiday season drove crowds of motorists onto Pickaway County highways and into Pickaway County courts.

At least 16 motorists were haled before courts in Circleville and Pickaway County last weekend and fined a total of $360 and costs.

Heading the list of offenders was Bobby Eugene Pearl of Circleville Route 2, fined $100 and costs and sentenced to five days in jail in the court of Mayor Ed Amey for drunk driving. He was arrested by Officer Rott List.

Others fined in mayor's court were Paul E. Rice of Michigan, $10 and costs for crossing a yellow line; Donald Circle of Jackson, $10 and costs for yellow line; Roy Royce of Michigan, $10 and costs for yellow line; Richard Martin of Jackson, $10 and costs for yellow line.

Eugene Flint of Cleveland, $10 and costs for yellow line; Franklin Kerry of Chillicothe Route 8, $30 and costs for no operator's license; Norman Chard of Marion, $10 and costs for faulty muffler; Titus Bridges of Columbus, $25 and costs for speeding at 75 miles per hour; Andrew McBroom, $50 and costs for speeding at 80 miles per hour; Worthy Duncan of Delaware, $15 and costs for driving to the left of centerline; Phillip Scott of Rio Grande, $5 and costs for yellow line; Norvill Clark of Pemberton, W. Va., $25 and costs for reckless operation; and Elbert Smith of Pontiac, Mich., $10 and costs for reckless operation.

John S. Pfeleger, 22, of West Virginia, was fined $25 and costs in the court of Magistrate Oscar Rott following an accident on Route 22 just west of Route 104.

And George Linville, 21, of Clayville, Pa., was fined $15 and costs in the court of Williamsport Mayor William Johnson for speeding.

In addition, five other persons were fined a total of $75 and costs in Mayor Amey's court for intoxication.

Lad, 3, Hurt In Accident

A 3-year-old Circleville lad was injured late Saturday on East Main street when he ran into the path of an auto.

Officer Mack Wise said David Russell, 3, of 315 North Scioto street, broke away from the adult holding him at about 6:30 p. m. Saturday and ran into East Main street.

The youngster was struck by the left front bumper of an auto operated by Richard Tope, 18, of Springfield. The lad suffered a cut chin and bruises.

World Today

By James Marlow
Associated Press
News Analyst

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Win or lose, at least Sen. Taft has had expert help in trying for the presidency. The men around him are a bunch of pros.

There are two Taft headquarters. The one here, the political headquarters, is called the "Taft Committee. The other, in New York, is named "Citizens for Taft." Eisenhower has a political headquarters here and another in New York, called "Citizens for Eisenhower."

In addition to regularly paid staffs, both men get office help from volunteers. And there are various Taft and Eisenhower organizations around the country.

Taft's cousin, David S. Ingalls, is chairman of the Taft Committee here. The New York headquarters is headed by Lt. Gen. Albert Wedemeyer, the only non-pro in this story.

Like Taft, his cousin Ingalls is an Ohioan, a lawyer, and a Yale man. Besides time spent as a Navy captain and undersecretary of the Navy, the gray-haired, pleasant Ingalls has been in politics since the 1920s. He helped Taft in his successful campaign for reelection to the Senate in 1950.

THOMAS E. Coleman, a lean and sharp-eyed industrialist from Madison, Wis., is one of the key men around Taft. He was Harold Stassen's campaign manager in 1948, when Stassen got nowhere. He is in charge of Taft's campaign in the Midwest, where he's been in politics a long time. The Taft people picked him to be their floor manager at the convention.

Still in his 30s, Richard L. Guy-lay handles Taft's publicity. Although his regular job is with a New York public relations firm, he's no political amateur either. He steered Taft's publicity in that 1950 campaign.

Then there's John D. M. Hamilton, who was chairman of the Republican National Committee back in the 1930s when Gov. Alf Landon got the Republican nomination but lost in crashing defeat to President Roosevelt.

Two other top Taft lieutenants are congressmen: Clarence Brown, an Ohio publisher, and Carol Reece of Tennessee, who has been an educator as well as a politician. Both have been in politics for years.

As Dewey's failures showed, the pros around you can't always win you the presidency. But they're a big help in getting you the nomination.

Two Bridge Jobs Listed In County

Two bridge projects in the southern sector of Pickaway County are listed in the latest bulletin of the state highway department.

Work was under way as follows:

Route 361—Kingston Northwest road, bridge construction west of Route 159 Junction. A temporary bridge and run-around is provided.

Route 138 — Clarksburg-Circleville road, repairing bridge northeast of Clarksburg. A good temporary route is provided, adding one mile in distance.

Pony Rider, 16, Fractures Hand

Carl Lindsey, 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lindsey of Circleville Route 2, was injured Friday when he was thrown from a pony.

He was given treatment in Berger hospital for a fractured left hand and returned to his home.

Battery Price Cut

CLEVELAND, June 16.—Willard Storage Battery Co. today announced a reduction of approximately six per cent in the prices of automotive replacement batteries, effective immediately.

Seabees Elect

MARION, June 16.—Ralph Oberlin of Youngstown was elected president of the Ohio branch of the Seabee Veterans of America at the group's convention here over the weekend.

Tire Prices Cut

AKRON, June 16.—Seiberling Rubber Co. cut the price of its tubes and truck tires today, but not the price of passenger tires.

Ohio Newspaper Association Attacks Curbs On Information

COLUMBUS, June 16.—Steps were taken by the Ohio Newspaper Association Monday to procure full and unrestricted access to information about top governmental activities in Ohio down to transactions of school boards and township trustees.

Appointment of a freedom of information committee, representing metropolitan, medium daily and weekly newspapers was announced by R. Kenneth Kerr, president of the ONA.

"Newspapers throughout the nation are awakening to the public's serious lack of freedom of information, from the federal level to the smallest school board," said Kerr.

Four Drunken Drivers Lose Licenses Here

Four drunken drivers have lost their driving privileges following trials in Pickaway County common pleas court.

Stiffest penalty was meted out to John M. Short, 34, of Kingston, who was arrested following an accident on Kingston Pike at Scioppo Creek bridge.

Short was fined $100 and costs ($75 suspended), sentenced to 30 days in jail (suspended) and lost his right to apply for a license for another year for drunken driving. In addition, he was fined $200 and costs ($150 suspended) and sentenced to 90 days in jail (87 days suspended) for driving after his license had been revoked.

Clinton Smith, 43, of Circleville Route 3, was fined $100 and costs ($75 suspended), 30 days in jail (suspended) and lost his driving privileges for six months.

CLARENCE Conway, 60, of Ashville, was fined $100 and costs ($75 suspended), sentenced to 30 days in jail (suspended) and lost his driving rights for six months.

And Alvin Risley, 38, of Columbus, was fined $100 and costs ($75 suspended), 30 days in jail (suspended) and lost his license for one year.

All four drivers appeared before the court of Judge Earl Parker on affidavits filed by Prosecutor Guy Cline.

Taft-Kefauver Word Battle Is Hottest Yet

ed, to choose a Taft supporter, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, as the GOP convention keynoter?

Taft said it would be hard to find somebody who hasn't taken sides. The thing to do, he added, was to find the best man for the job.

Kefauver also took part in an earlier Sunday telecast—playing a real life Father's Day role with his children, his wife Nancy, his 81-year-old father and sundry friends sharing the camera view of the senator's back yard.

It was all as relaxed as malted milk at bedtime, but Mrs. Kefauver confided that it still was too exciting for her tastes.

After the Chicago convention, win or lose, she said, "we're going down to the farm in Tennessee and take off our shoes and really relax."

Kefauver himself had a word—"ridiculous" — for Eisenhower's statement that the federal budget can be reduced some 40 billion dollars in the next few years.

"I think he must have been thinking about something else," Kefauver said.

His daughter Diane didn't get into the backyard act, but the camera picked her up, looking somewhat wistfully out of an upstairs window.

She had mumps.

Lutheran Bible School Enters Final Week

Daily Vacation Bible School classes in Trinity Lutheran church began their third and final week Monday.

The enrollment of more than 300 pupils is the largest in the history of the program.

Two of the annual Bible School events have already been held. On Friday morning of the first week, the "early bird breakfast" was held in Ted Lewis Park, with about 175 youngsters present. Then, last Friday, the annual bicycle hike was held for the older pupils. There were about 100 children who cycled to Pickaway County Fairgrounds, where they had a picnic supper.

Monday is family night, and all pupils and their parents are invited to be in the church at 7 p. m. The program will consist of educational, religious and comedy films.

At 7 p. m. Thursday, the parish house will be the scene of a display of the work of the pupils. Projects of all departments will be shown. This will be accompanied by a program given by the students to acquaint the parents further with the work of the Bible School.

FRIDAY IS the final day of the Bible school. There will be a picnic at Gold Cliff Park. The children will meet in the parish house at 9 a. m. and go to the park for swimming and skating. They will return home after a picnic lunch.

Bible school program for 1952 will officially end with a special Bible school service Sunday morning, at which time certificates will be awarded.

Lass Swallows Kerosene Sunday

Red Island Raided

Horses Prefer Lush Hay To Sawdust

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK—(AP)—Ivan Ivanovich is going to the Olympics.

And the entire sports world is buzzing with gossip about what will happen to the Russian teams in Helsinki next month.

The decision to let Soviet athletes compete in the international games puts the Politburo to its supreme test. The Communist leaders have held that their ideology has given Russia the world's greatest science, art, and literature. Now they are going to show that ideology also builds better bodies.

Is a Communist muscle necessarily better than a liberty-loving muscle? The Soviet athletes are being sent to prove this. And it's not a pleasant spot to be in. They must feel like old Roman gladiators, told to win or face the consequences — a down-turned thumb.

Soviet athletes take their training seriously. One report is they keep in shape by reading Karl Marx all morning, and then taper off in the afternoon by wrestling live bears. Before going to bed they relax by doing full knee bends with a copy of the life of Stalin on each shoulder.

Soviet leaders must be already a bit worried about the possible effect contact with the Western world will have on their athletes. And not without reason.

Let us imagine, for example, what happens when Ivan Ivanovich, a Russian weight lifter, meets up with Jim Biceps, an American contender. The first thing they do, of course, is feed each others muscles gingerly. All weight lifters do that. It is their way of saying "hello."

"Well, what will happen if you win the championship?" says Jim.

"I will get a foreman's job in my factory—perhaps also a Stalin medal," replies Ivan. "What will be your reward if you win?"—and adds hastily—"Not that it is possible."

"Oh, I'll turn pro," says Jim. "What does that mean?" asks Ivan.

"Oh," says Biceps, "it means I'll probably get a job playing Tarzan in the movies. I'll also start manufacturing bar bells under my own name, and a correspondence course in muscle building. Then there are the breakfast food endorsements, television appearances, and a book on weight lifting."

"All in all, I suppose I will clear $100,000 the first year."

"That ain't rubles," signs Ivan, enviously. But he will wander off, Communist-tainted for life, wondering why he can't get a chance to play Tarzan, too.

Windy City Getting Into Swing For Two Big Political Confabs

CHICAGO—The Windy City can report to the nation that things rapidly are shaping up for the opening here of the big political showdowns of the Republicans, commencing July 7, and the Democrats on July 21.

The prospect of two wide-open presidential nomination jamborees is throwing even this convention-wise metropolis into a tizzy. There is no past parallel here for the elaborate preparations.

They include large-scale remodeling of the huge International Amphitheater itself, scene of the actual sessions; vast repaving and city improvement in the area of the hall, and, of course, immense television staging whereby an estimated 60 million will look over the shoulders of the 13,000 jammed into the arena.

A wall of the amphitheater, which in its normal routine houses the great livestock expositions annually, has been knocked out and a $300,000 air conditioning system is being rushed.

The heavy machinery going into the gigantic cooler, festively bedecked with pretty girls, was trundled through the city's streets, indicating how showmanship is gripping every aspect of the make-ready.

ping every aspect of the make-ready.

THE FEW remaining holdovers from the bamboo fan waving era of old William Jennings Bryan, when a national convention was not authentic unless the temperature surged to 100 degrees, are shaking their heads over these new frills, but they have not seen the half of it yet.

The hall, which rates as "the world's biggest cow barn," is being redecorated in a beguiling array of pastel tints, so that it will bluish nicely into the eight TV cameras to be ranged along platforms circling the rear of the hall.

TV looms as the tail wagging the convention dog this time. There even is subtle pressure being exerted.

ably upon the participants and delegates to don light blue shirts, the better to be televised. There is no doubt about it; the biggest political mugging in history is being plotted!

The two major parties may not be able to get together on their politics, but they are peaceful as lambs while working out their television and convention plans together.

Under a joint code, telecasting time already has been sold for approximately $2 million, all of which goes to the networks to defray the huge costs.

Sponsors may give commercials during intermissions in floor activity, but disclaimers must be made at the beginning and end of each telecast to the effect that the political party does not endorse the sponsor's product.

Perhaps in a reverse disclaimer, the sponsors may return the compliment by not necessarily endorsing the party's product either!

So that the mammoth potential audience may be yet larger, TV cable facilities are being pushed to Miami, New Orleans, Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth and Oklahoma City, raising the total of cities in the nets to 32. Radio, far from being nudged from the scene, will have eight ringside booths for the five nationwide nets.

VANGUARD of convention managers is on the scene. Charles Hacker, assistant to GOP Chairman Guy Gabrielson, and W. Neal Roach, executive assistant to Frank McKinney, Democratic chieftain, operate suites in the Conrad Hilton hotel.

They are allocating 8,000 downtown hotel rooms, and dipping into the 25,000 farther out. Not only are Hacker and Roach on speaking terms, but they confer almost constantly.

Chicago paid its $500,000 for the two conventions, but that was only the beginning. The 21-minute auto ride from the loop to the hall is being smoothed and parking problems ironed out to the tune of $1,960,000.

The stockyards region admittedly is not Chicago's prettiest, but it will look better to visitors after new curbs are installed and 700 new street lights at a cost of $670,000. Twenty-two new stop-and-go lights are being erected for $115,000.

The hall itself will remain much the same for the two meetings, representing an economy. National committee members and prominent guests will be seated on the stage, flanked by 860 press seats. A 35-foot runway will lead to the elevated and spotlighted rostrum.

GOP will be able to seat comfortably its 2,405 delegates and alternates on the main floor, but the railings must be moved back later to provide for the 3,500 Democrats who will have voting credentials.

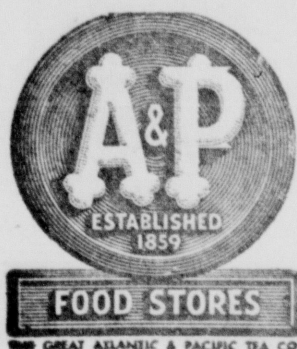

Democrats have the problem of where to put the band, but by the time the hoopla starts, people probably will be climbing upon each other's backs anyway.

The idea of using stars and stripes in the American flag originated from George Washington's coat-of-arms.

Horses Prefer Lush Hay To Sawdust

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK—(AP)—Ivan Ivanovich is going to the Olympics. And the entire sports world is buzzing with gossip about what will happen to the Russian teams in Helsinki next month.

The decision to let Soviet athletes compete in the international games puts the Politburo to its supreme test. The Communist leaders have held that their ideology has given Russia the world's greatest science, art, and literature. Now they are going to show that ideology also builds better bodies.

Is a Communist muscle necessarily better than a liberty-loving muscle? The Soviet athletes are being sent to prove this. And it's not a pleasant spot to be in. They must feel like old Roman gladiators, told to win or face the consequences — a down-turned thumb.

Soviet athletes take their training seriously. One report is they keep in shape by reading Karl Marx all morning, and then taper off in the afternoon by wrestling live bears. Before going to bed they relax by doing full knee bends with a copy of the life of Stalin on each shoulder.

Soviet leaders must be already a bit worried about the possible effect contact with the Western world will have on their athletes. And not without reason.

Let us imagine, for example, what happens when Ivan Ivanovich, a Russian weight lifter, meets up with Jim Biceps, an American contender. The first thing they do, of course, is feel each others muscles gingerly. All weight lifters do that. It is their way of saying "hello."

"Well, what will happen if you win the championship?" says Jim.

"I will get a foreman's job in my factory—perhaps also a Stalin medal," replies Ivan. "What will be your reward if you win?"—and adds hastily—"Not that it is possible."

"Oh, I'll turn pro," says Jim.

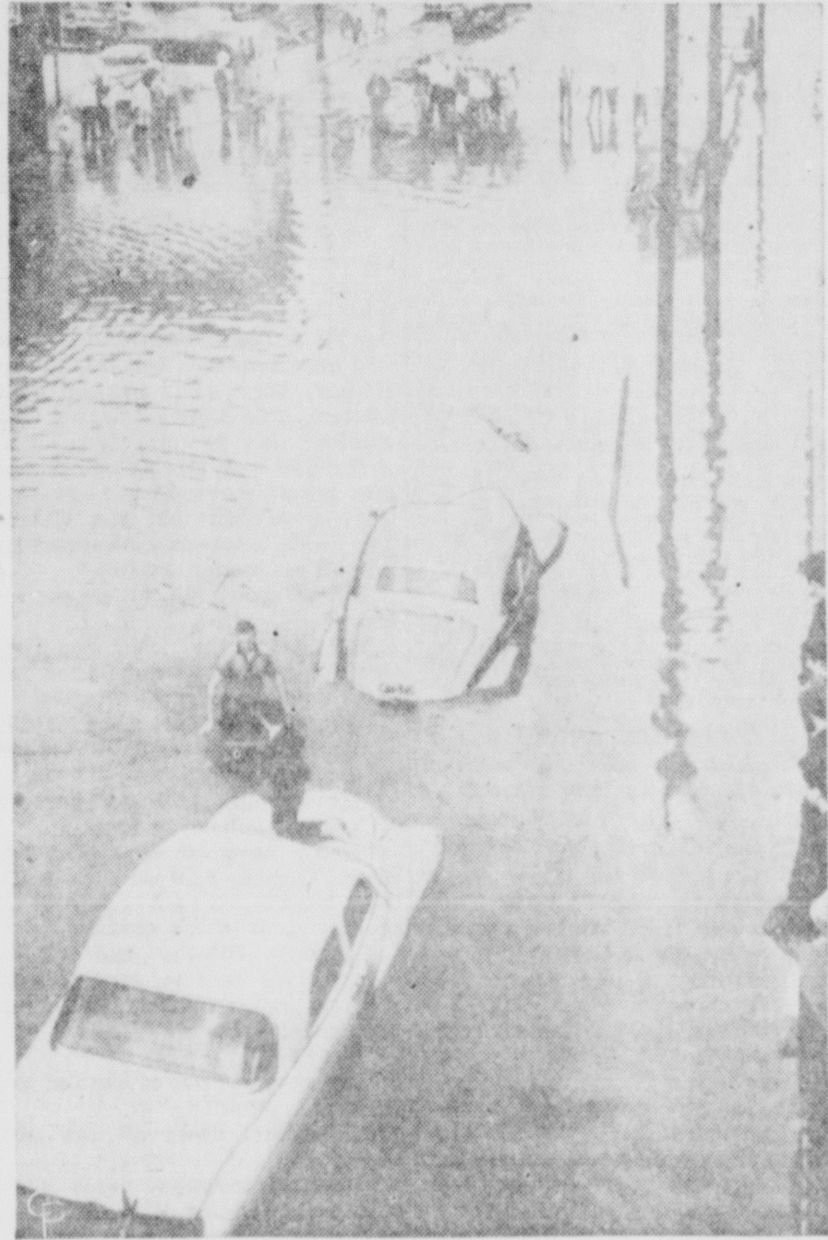

"What does that mean?" asks Ivan.

"Oh," says Biceps, "it means I'll probably get a job playing Tarzan in the movies. I'll also start manufacturing bar bells under my own name, and a correspondence course in muscle building. Then there are the breakfast food endorsements, television appearances, and a book on weight lifting."

"All in all, I suppose I will clear $100,000 the first year."

PATTERN FOR RAIN

MAN CAN BRING rainfall at his own will and pleasure, it is contended by a group of scientists who are conducting a series of experiments which will continue through the Summer.

Dr. Irving Langmuir, Nobel prize-winning scientist, speaking for the group, says a pattern has been created which will bring rain at regular intervals throughout the nation by seeding clouds with silver iodide.

Results of the experiments are revealed in a copyrighted story in the Tucson, Ariz., Daily Citizen. No hocus pocus is involved.

Clouds seeded in New Mexico, Dr. Langmuir explains, brought rains in eastern states the next day with regularity. Seeding dates were changed from time to time to prove that the resulting precipitation would not have happened otherwise. Time elapsed between seeding and precipitation was the period necessary for the seeded area to move across the country, it is contended.

If Dr. Langmuir's plan, which is being developed in behalf of the military, is proved to be generally effective, man's trouble with drouth will be ended. If Iowa corn needs rain in July or August, it will simply be a matter of calling up the right state and ordering a few pounds of silver iodide to be sprinkled in the clouds, with Iowa to be billed for the modest expense involved.

PAY FOR THE QUEEN

BRITAIN'S QUEEN Elizabeth now wants to know what the job pays. She also thinks her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, is entitled to a raise. Philip is now drawing down a neat $28,000 a year, but with an increasing family and everything, it isn't a fancy figure. There is also the matter of an appropriation for sister Margaret and provision for the Queen Mother. Queen Elizabeth's late father, King George VI, drew down a salary of $1,148,000 a year, plus $367,000 for care of the family and relatives. Queen Elizabeth asks nothing for little Prince Charles, the heir apparent, who receives an income of $300,000 a year from the duchy of Cornwall.

England is in serious financial straits, but there is no possibility Queen Elizabeth's wishes will be denied. Royalty is royalty and must be maintained according to English tradition.

These Days

I have never attended a press conference anywhere. Early in my career in this business, I decided that a politician cannot afford to speak frankly to a mob. Such press conferences as General Eisenhower held in Abilene, Kansas, or in New York are non-professional gatherings, with television disturbing the line of thought. They were shows, not press conferences.

Before they took place, I was importuned to attend and to ask a question. I declined both suggestions. Certainly, asking a question is dull business, unless it is possible to ask a third and a fourth and a fifth until the subject is exhausted.

For instance, the sum total of the Abilene speech and the two press conferences leads to the conclusion that Eisenhower's foreign policy is closer to that of Robert A. Taft, Herbert Hoover and John Foster Dulles than to the over-all policies of Dean Acheson and George Marshall.

There is something radically wrong in that conclusion because it runs counter to all that has happened and been said prior to Abilene. In a word, placing the entire Eisenhower career on one side of the ledger and the Abilene speech and two press interviews on the other, a contradiction in attitude and tone exposes itself. To dissolve that contradiction would involve a prolonged delving into the general's mind with the object of discovering whether his recent experiences in Europe have modified his position. That process would bear no fruit in the irritations of a mob interview.

I am minded of an address that President Truman made to high school students, and one of them, Roberta Levitt, who is the editor of a school newspaper, wrote a piece about it. Roberta is 17, and she was very deeply impressed, perhaps because Truman had once been a high school editor himself.

Roberta Levitt wrote: "He said his main objective in speaking to us was to try and show us the right journalistic paths to follow. An interesting point was the statement that so many of today's editorials are based on propaganda. Truth is the essential factor of a good editorial."

Truth, of course, is the goal of all thinking and writing; the difficulty is to find the truth. As much beauty grows in the dank and decay of the floor of the forest, so the truth often comes out of propaganda. What President Truman objected to was not his own propaganda, but the other fellow's. He, himself, issues bales of it, often of little value, like his wild statement, in contradiction to Generals Ridgway and Vandenberg, on the quality of our air power in comparison with Russo-Chinese air power. If Truman was correct, Ridgway and Vandenberg were wrong and Congress should know why.

Propaganda means the projection of ideas and facts. It might be truthful or it might be "slanted." It might be of the quality of St. Paul's Epistles or it might be of the quality of some press agent who wants to convince his fellowmen that his client is one of the elite.

Penicillin Used to Ward Off Attacks of Rheumatic Fever

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

HEARTENING news in the medical world is a report that penicillin can be used to prevent rheumatic fever. This dread disease has left many a child an invalid for life.

A famous author has said, "Rheumatic fever is a disease which leaks the joints and bites the heart." This points out that the pain in the joints, swelling, tenderness and disability during an attack of rheumatic fever are not its most serious results. Its greater danger lies in the fact that it often leaves a patient with a seriously and permanently damaged heart. Indeed, there is hardly any other disease that can be as serious and disabling over a long period of time.

Rheumatic fever usually affects the heart many years after the first infection, scarring the valves inside the organ, and interfering with the normal heart action. The doctor can recognize this condition as he listens to the heart and hears a certain type of "murmur."

Rheumatic fever also has a tendency to return, and the patient who has weathered one attack may later suffer one after another. This is why medical men all over the world have been searching for ways to prevent these attacks, especially when a person has had one or more already, or is known to have a tendency toward this type of infection in the body.

It has long been known that bacteria of the streptococcus type are an indirect cause of rheumatic fever. These bacteria are among those which can be destroyed and controlled by penicillin when they cause infections in the body.

Doctors have thus thought that penicillin might also be used to prevent severe attacks of rheumatic fever, and it has done this in some cases. The drug must be taken several times a day, sometimes for many years. This routine has protected children's hearts until they were strong enough to go without the drug.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Q. J.: I have epilepsy. Is there any danger of my child having epilepsy?

Answer: Your child has only one in a hundred chances of having chronic epilepsy.

The BOOK of the CRIME

by ELIZABETH DALY

Copyright, 1951, by Elizabeth Daly. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

SYNOPSIS

When Gray Austen discovers his wife, Rena, holding a slim paper-bound book in her hand, he becomes so furious that she flees the house in terror. She manages to reach Henry Gamadge, noted biophiliac detective, who on hearing her story decides to hide her in his household. Why she asks Mr. Gamadge did the night of that little book, the story of some ancient crime, so terribly disturb her husband? Seated with the great authority on old books and scripts in his study, Rena tells him all about herself and Gray and their marriage. She and Gray had been happy enough together in their old brown stone house until his brother and sister, Jerome and Hildreth, came on from the west to join them. But they had come at Gray's own bidding! While they that young Ordway, a nephew, drops in casually to visit Rena, but Gamadge points out that the indiscretion of any young gentleman calling on a missing wife is cause for trouble for that wife. Caution is the watch word now!

CHAPTER NINE

"HELLO GRAM," Ordway sat down opposite her and got out his pipe.

"Is that child all right, Norris?"

"Fine. Settled for the present." He began to laugh. "Seems their baby nurse is on holiday, and they've got her in the cap and veil and uniform."

"How clever."

"Wouldn't have recognized her myself at first if I'd met her pushing the go-cart."

"It relieves me to know that she's getting out into the air; she's been looking very pale lately, and she's lost weight in the last months."

"They're a little worried about our being seen beating it away."

"You were not seen. That very disagreeable-looking maid of theirs didn't come to the front door and investigate until you were around the corner and out of my sight. I was relieved when I saw your cab turn, because by that time the others were all out in the vestibule."

"What I mean, Gram, they—Gamadge and his wife—seem to be cooking up some idea of a divorce for her."

"Naturally."

"And if I got into the picture they seem to think it might gum the works a little."

"It might. How about that door-man?"

"He didn't see her."

"They don't wish to pursue the acquaintance, Norris?"

"I'm supposed to know them."

"Very simple. They must know something to the disadvantage of the lame husband. I thought he looked depressed when he came out to walk the little dog. It seems very sad. That brother—his the living image of his father, poor old Charles Austen's elder brother, you know."

"What was that story, anyhow?"

He added: "Dad mentioned something last night."

"Something about money; he was quietly pushed off the Stock Exchange."

"Thought they had plenty of dough."

"Not so much at that time; Charles Austen did very well for himself afterwards. Jerome Senior went west, and there was more trouble of some kind; and he married unfortunately. But this younger boy, they called him after Charles, you know—Charles Gray Austen; this younger boy did so well in the war, and he and Charles met before he went overseas, Charles Austen told me. Charles was much taken with him, and left him all his money for life."

Norris frowned. "It seems a mess."

"No girl of that kind would run off in that way without good reason," said old Mrs. Ordway.

"From what Gamadge said, I gather nobody ever laid a finger on her, anyhow."

"He wouldn't take her part for no reason, you know."

"Don't have to convince me." Norris Ordway smoked for a while, legs crossed, head against the padded back of his chair.

Presently Ordway said: "Those parties you used to give for me: birthday cake, magician with rabbit, magic lantern slides."

"Yes?"

"Did they get out of hand at all? End up rough?"

"Naturally, dear; all the little boys."

"I can't remember much about them. Gamadge's wife—Dawson her name was—"

Old Mrs. Ordway raised her eyes from her book. "Beautiful child. I think there was a little accident—somebody upset some of the supper over her nice white dress."

"Oh. I was just wondering."

After another interval, speaking around the pipe, he said: "Austen had such bad luck with his first wife, too."

"Yes."

Their eyes met in a long, calm look. Then he observed: "Perhaps I ought to have carted her away."

Old Mrs. Ordway remarked that it might be just as well not to make a practice of it.

"You broke me of dumping the desert down peoples' backs," said Ordway. "Or I suppose you did. I haven't done it lately."

The office nurse smiled sweetly upon the new patient, took his name, address and occupation all over again, said she hoped his knee wasn't painful at that moment, and feared it might be.

"It's better today," said Malcolm. "It was very bad last night."

"You don't sound as if it had bothered you this way before," said the nurse, with that little air of reminding one how lucky one is, for which her profession is famous.

"No, it hasn't," said Malcolm. "Can't understand it."

"You didn't try a little aspirin?"

"Is that a good thing to take for it?"

"It's considered so."

The nurse went away, and soon returned to pass Malcolm into a bright office. Dr. Wolfram rose behind his desk. He was stoutish and getting bald, and he had a thick blond mustache.

"Well, Mr. Malcolm; what can I do for you? You don't look as though you needed help from me or anybody. Kneee bothering you?"

"Yes, this knee, doctor," said Malcolm, indicating it. "The swelling's gone down, but it's still a little tender."

The doctor came around his desk to prod the knee in a way which would certainly have hurt if there had been anything the matter with it, so Malcolm winced.

"No blow? No injury?"

"Not a thing. The pain just came on yesterday afternoon, and hurt like mad for several hours. My wife finally gave me a pill; she needed some sleep too."

They both laughed. "These arthritic attacks are funny," said the doctor. "They come from nowhere and they go; but they go faster if you help them along with a few good big doses of aspirin every now and then. I'll write it down."

He did so, saying meanwhile: "Liquid diet while you're taking the aspirin, and I recommend your going to a hospital and getting some thermotherapy if the attack returns."

"Well, I'm glad it's not serious," said Malcolm. "I had a vision of myself limping around like poor Gray Austen."

"Could end up like that," said the doctor. "I mean with a permanent affection of the knee joint, but not this time. Perhaps we'd better go into the question of diet, to ward off future trouble. Rheumatoid arthritis can be very troublesome."

He went on writing, then glanced up to ask: "Know the Austens? What a shame that is for a young man; that is permanent."

"So I understand. I once knew his wife."

"Oh? Charming girl," said Wolfram, his face lighting up. "But the last time I was down there—Miss Austen's laryngitis, it was—using I thought Mrs. Austen looked a little unwell. However, she never seems to be sick."

Malcolm said: "I meant Austen's first wife."

Bennett Cerr's Try, Stop Me

James Jones, author of that phenomenal best-seller, "From Here to Eternity," may net half a million dollars from the book before all subsidiary rights are disposed of, but not one cent of that money will come from an old friend if he can help it. In his pocket these days he carries a quantity of envelopes, each of which contains 67 cents in cash. When any friend tells him, "Hey, I bought a copy of your book," Jones presses one of the envelopes into his hands, explaining, "Here's my royalty on that copy. I don't want to make money on my friends!"

news behind the news

WASHINGTON, June 16 — The military leaders in the Pentagon have quietly staged their swiftest and most ignominious retreat since the Battle of Bull Run in their conflict with Congress over establishment of a simple and economical purchasing system of weapons amounting to more than $30 billion annually.

It was only a few weeks ago that "the brass" loaded trucks with new, wicked and complicated weapons, hauled them to Capitol Hill and set up a "chamber of horrors" that made a circus collection of freaks look like perfectly normal people.

The show was designed to prove that a single and coordinated procurement program for such superhuman monstrosities of death was out of the question.

MIRACULOUS — An Armed Services subcommittee, headed by Representative F. Edward Hebert of Louisiana, was not frightened or awed. The "chamber of horrors," it was developed, consisted of weapons which are manufactured and fabricated in accord with the basic theories of our mass production machine.

Although almost miraculous in their battlefield performance, they do not require miracle men to make them and buy them for the

PATTERN FOR RAIN

MAN CAN BRING rainfall at his own will and pleasure, it is contended by a group of scientists who are conducting a series of experiments which will continue through the Summer.

Dr. Irving Langmuir, Nobel prize-winning scientist, speaking for the group, says a pattern has been created which will bring rain at regular intervals throughout the nation by seeding clouds with silver iodide.

Results of the experiments are revealed in a copyrighted story in the Tucson, Ariz., Daily Citizen. No hocus pocus is involved.

Clouds seeded in New Mexico, Dr. Langmuir explains, brought rains in eastern states the next day with regularity. Seeding dates were changed from time to time to prove that the resulting precipitation would not have happened otherwise. Time elapsed between seeding and precipitation was the period necessary for the seeded area to move across the country, it is contended.

If Dr. Langmuir's plan, which is being developed in behalf of the military, is proved to be generally effective, man's trouble with drouth will be ended. If Iowa corn needs rain in July or August, it will simply be a matter of calling up the right state and ordering a few pounds of silver iodide to be sprinkled in the clouds, with Iowa to be billed for the modest expense involved.

PAY FOR THE QUEEN

BRITAIN'S QUEEN Elizabeth now wants to know what the job pays. She also thinks her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, is entitled to a raise. Philip is now drawing down a neat $28,000 a year, but with an increasing family and everything, it isn't a fancy figure. There is also the matter of an appropriation for sister Margaret and provision for the Queen Mother. Queen Elizabeth's late father, King George VI, drew down a salary of $1,148,000 a year, plus $367,000 for care of the family and relatives. Queen Elizabeth asks nothing for little Prince Charles, the heir apparent, who receives an income of $300,000 a year from the duchy of Cornwall.

England is in serious financial straits, but there is no possibility Queen Elizabeth's wishes will be denied. Royalty is royalty and must be maintained according to English tradition.

These Days

I have never attended a press conference anywhere. Early in my career in this business, I decided that a politician cannot afford to speak frankly to a mob. Such press conferences as General Eisenhower held in Abilene, Kansas, or in New York are non-professional gatherings, with television disturbing the line of thought. They were shows, not press conferences.

Before they took place, I was importuned to attend and to ask a question. I declined both suggestions. Certainly, asking a question is dull business, unless it is possible to ask a third and a fourth and a fifth until the subject is exhausted.

For instance, the sum total of the Abilene speech and the two press conferences leads to the conclusion that Eisenhower's foreign policy is closer to that of Robert A. Taft, Herbert Hoover and John Foster Dulles than to the over-all policies of Dean Acheson and George Marshall.

There is something radically wrong in that conclusion because it runs counter to all that has happened and been said prior to Abilene. In a word, placing the entire Eisenhower career on one side of the ledger and the Abilene speech and two press interviews on the other, a contradiction in attitude and tone exposes itself. To dissolve that contradiction would involve a prolonged delving into the general's mind with the object of discovering whether his recent experiences in Europe have modified his position. That process would bear no fruit in the irritations of a mob interview.

I am minded of an address that President Truman made to high school students, and one of them, Roberta Levitt, who is the editor of a school newspaper, wrote a piece about it. Roberta is 17, and she was very deeply impressed, perhaps because Truman had once been a high school editor himself.

Roberta Levitt wrote:

"He said his main objective in speaking to us was to try and show us the right journalistic paths to follow. An interesting point was the statement that so many of today's editorials are based on propaganda. Truth is the essential factor of a good editorial."

Truth, of course, is the goal of all thinking and writing; the difficulty is to find the truth. As much beauty grows in the dank and decay of the floor of the forest, so the truth often comes out of propaganda. What President Truman objected to was not his own propaganda, but the other fellow's. He, himself, issues bales of it, often of little value, like his wild statement, in contradiction to Generals Ridgway and Vandenberg, on the quality of our air power in comparison with Russo-Chinese air power. If Truman was correct, Ridgway and Vandenberg were wrong and Congress should know why.

Propaganda means the projection of ideas and facts. It might be truthful or it might be "slanted." It might be of the quality of St. Paul's Epistles or it might be of the quality of some press agent who wants to convince his fellowmen that his client is one of the elite.

Penicillin Used to Ward Off Attacks of Rheumatic Fever

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

HEARTENING news in the medical world is a report that penicillin can be used to prevent rheumatic fever. This dread disease has left many a child an invalid for life.

A famous author has said, "Rheumatic fever is a disease which licks the joints and bites the heart." This points out that the pain in the joints, swelling, tenderness and disability during an attack of rheumatic fever are not its most serious results. Its greater danger lies in the fact that it often leaves a patient with a seriously and permanently damaged heart. Indeed, there is hardly any other disease that can be as serious and disabling over a long period of time.

Scars Heart Valves

Rheumatic fever usually affects the heart many years after the first infection, scarring the valves inside the organ, and interfering with the normal heart action. The doctor can recognize this condition as he listens to the heart and hears a certain type of "murmur."

Rheumatic fever also has a tendency to return, and the patient who has weathered one attack may later suffer one after another. This is why medical men all over the world have been searching for ways to prevent these attacks, especially when a person has had one or more already, or is known to have a tendency toward this type of infection in the body.

Indirect Cause

It has long been known that bacteria of the streptococcus type are an indirect cause of rheumatic fever. These bacteria are among those which can be destroyed and controlled by penicillin when they cause infections in the body.

Doctors have thus thought that penicillin might also be used to prevent severe attacks of rheumatic fever, and it has done this in some cases. The drug must be taken several times a day, sometimes for many years. This routine has protected children's hearts until they were strong enough to go without the drug.

The BOOK of the CRIME

by ELIZABETH DALY

Copyright, 1951, by Elizabeth Daly
Published by King Features Syndicate

SYNOPSIS

When Gray Austen discovers his wife, Rena, holding a slim paper-bound book in her hand, he becomes so furious that she flees the house in terror. She manages to reach Henry Gamadge, noted bibliophile detective, who on hearing her story decides to hide her in his household. Why she asks Mr. Gamadge, did the sight of that little book, the story of some ancient crime, so terribly disturb her husband? Seated with the great authority on old books and scripts in his study, Rena tells him all about herself and Gray and their marriage. She and Gray had been nappy enough together in their old brown stone house until one brother and sister, Jerome and Hildreth, came on from the west to join them. But, they had come at Gray's own bidding! While they chat young Ordway, a neighbor, drops in casually to visit Rena, but Gamadge points out that the indiscretion of any young gentleman calling on a missing wife may cause trouble for that wife. Caution is the watch word now!

CHAPTER NINE

"HELLO GRAM," Ordway sat down opposite her and got out his pipe.

"Is that child all right, Norris?"

"Fine. Settled for the present." He began to laugh. "Seems their baby nurse is on holiday and they've got her in the cap and veil and uniform."

"How clever."

"What I mean, Gram, they—Gamadge and his wife—seem to be cooking up some idea of a divorce for her."

"Naturally."

"And if I got into the picture they seem to think it might gum the works a little."

"It might. How about that doorman?"

"He didn't see her."

Presently Ordway said: "Those parties you used to give for me; birthday cake, magician with rabbit, magic lantern slides."

"Naturally, dear; all the little boys."

"I can't remember much about them. Gamadge's wife—Dawson—her name was—"

Their eyes met in a long, calm look. Then he observed: "Perhaps I ought to have carted her away."

Old Mrs. Ordway remarked that it might be just as well not to make a practice of it.

"You broke me of dumping the dessert down peoples' backs," said Ordway. "Or I suppose you did. I haven't done it lately."

While young Ordway's past was thus being expounded to him, another young man, dark, perfectly dressed and limping a little, was shown into the office of Dr. Kurt Wolfram uptown. He had telephoned for an appointment, explaining that his own doctor was not available; which he wasn't, being at that moment on the golf course of his country club, using bad language about the weather.

The office nurse smiled sweetly upon the new patient, took his name, address and occupation all over again, said she hoped his knee wasn't painful at that moment, and feared it might be.

"It's better today," said Malcolm. "It was very bad last night."

"You don't sound as if it had bothered you this way before," said the nurse, with that little air of reminding one how lucky one is, for which her profession is famous.

"No, it hasn't," said Malcolm. "Can't understand it."

"You didn't try a little aspirin?"

"Is that a good thing to take for it?"

"It's considered so."

The nurse went away, and soon returned to pass Malcolm into a bright office. Dr. Wolfram rose behind his desk. He was stoutish and getting bald, and he had a thick blond moustache.

"Well, Mr. Malcolm; what can I do for you? You don't look as though you needed help from me or anybody. Knee bothering you?"

"Yes, this knee, doctor," said Malcolm, indicating it. "The swelling's gone down, but it's still a little tender."

James Jones, author of that phenomenal best-seller, "From Here to Eternity," may net half a million dollars from the book before all subsidiary rights are disposed of, but not one cent of that money will come from an old friend if he can help it. In his pocket these days he carries a quantity of envelopes, each of which contains 67 cents in cash. When any friend tells him, "Hey, I bought a copy of your book," Jones presses one of the envelopes into his hands, explaining, "Here's my royalty on that copy. I don't want to make money on my friends!"

Methodist Women Plan Officer's Training Day

Clinics To Be Held For District

All officers of the Woman's Society of Christian Service are invited to attend Officers' Training Day. The meeting for the women of this area, which is known as Circleville Group of Chillicothe District, will be at 1:00 p. m. Thursday in the Methodist church at Bloomingburg.

Clinics will be conducted by district officers who feel these meetings are so important that they have planned to hold one in each of the five groups, for the 130 societies in the district.

Mrs. D. B. Green, of Athens, president of Chillicothe District WSCS, urges local officers and interested persons to attend the session most convenient for them. Each one will start at 1:00 p. m. in the Methodist church of these towns: McArthur on June 18, Bloomingburg on June 19, Bainbridge on June 24, Coolville on June 25, and Pickerington on June 26.

Officers from this group are Mrs. Robert B. Weaver and Mrs. Roloff Wolford of Circleville, Mrs. J. M. Adamang of Bloomingburg, Mrs. Martin J. Cromley of Ashville, Mrs. Dwight King and Mrs. Albert Anderson of Mt. Sterling, Mrs. Fred Oswald of Washington C.H. and Mrs. John Dick of New Holland.

Mrs. Mitchell Is Speaker For Meeting

Mrs. Donald Mitchell talked on pioneer churchmen and missionaries of the Presbyterian church during the June meeting of the Woman's Association of the First Presbyterian church, Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Mitchell stated that there are new frontiers now. There are no new worlds to conquer but still new frontiers to conquer for Christ in the hearts and minds of people.

Her talk concluded with the presentation of an honorary membership in National Missions to Miss Clara Southward, made possible by the association.

Mrs. Oscar Root, president, was in charge of the business meeting and devotions were in charge of Mrs. George Barnes, assisted by Mrs. J. M. Hedges, Mrs. James Sampson, Mrs. Bishop Given, Mrs. Grace Wentworth and Mrs. Dick Robinson.

Musical selections were presented by "The Band Box," a group composed of Elizabeth M. Usser, Sally Cochran, Joyce Troutman, Diane Mason, Marjorie Magill and Mary Ann McClure.

Mrs. Mitchell presided at the tea table, which was centered with an arrangement of roses.

Groups A and B were in charge of the program and tea.

Scioto Society Conducts Meeting

Eighteen members of the Scioto Chapel Ladies Aid and 12 guests met at the parish house Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Elza Brooks, president, presided at the business meeting and gave a scripture reading following the opening song, "Help Somebody Today."

A poem, "Bridges We Never Cross," was read by the president, and the Rev. J. D. Hopper offered prayer.

Mrs. Harold Fee, secretary, and Mrs. Harold Wilson, treasurer, gave reports.

Mrs. Cecil Ward conducted a memorial service, accompanied on the piano by her daughter, Miss Miriam Ward.

Program following consisted of vocal solo by Jeanne Walker; two readings by Mrs. Ned Walker and a piano solo by Patricia Aldenderfer.

Contests were won by Mrs. Brooks, Mrs. Ward, and Mrs. J. D. Hopper.

Mrs. Walker, Miss Effie Walker, Mrs. Robert Holt and Mrs. James Easter, hostesses, served refreshments after the closing song.

Hostesses for July meeting will be Mrs. John Koch, Mrs. Chauncey Hedges and Mrs. Nelson Florence.

Fellowship Group Plans Social

Westminster Fellowship met Sunday evening in the social rooms of the First Presbyterian church.

Devotions were led by Becky Dountz and she used as her topic, "Friendship."

Plans were made for an ice cream social June 24. Anne Downing, president, was in charge of the business session.

Mrs. Joseph Adkins Jr., led a discussion on, "Social Situations."

Wheat, Fruit Farmers Vie In Rain War

Each Bombarding Clouds To Bring Or Prevent Moisture

YAKIMA, Wash., June 16—(AP)—Cloud formations moving toward Central Washington's Yakima and Wenatchee Valleys are being bombarded daily in secret, opposing experiments financed by wheat growers who want rain and fruit farmers who don't.

One set of attacks is designed to punch holes in the clouds to bring rain. The other seeks to disperse the clouds without rainfall. Both sides are secretive about the operations, but Yakima and Wenatchee newspapers reported the "wet" and "dry" campaigns were underway, with the dries claiming preliminary victory.

It's a critical time for both, with rain needed in the wheat fields and the cherry harvest starting. Rain causes ripening cherries to split and damages other "soft fruits" at harvest time.

Farmers in Central Washington's big wheat producing district hired the Water Resources Corporation of Denver as a rainmaker the last two years.

THE FIRM uses ground generators principally to bombard clouds with silver iodide, but cherry growers here said they heard rainmakers also were operating from planes.

Soft fruit growers, blaming rainmakers for damage to their crops last year, hired an anti-rainmaker this year. Growers voted to assess themselves $1 a ton of cherries, and Jack M. Hubbard, Olympia, Wash., meteorologist, was hired to ward off the rain.

Hubbard has been mysterious about his operations, methods and equipment, but the Yakima Republic reported he was "dashing from point to point in the valley to aid his ground forces as black clouds threaten."

Dr. Phil E. Church, University of Washington meteorologist, said the anti-rainmakers probably would use the same method as the rainmakers, only stronger.

He said the likely method would be to over-seed. Successful seeding depends on bombarding clouds with silver iodide which collects moisture particles until their weight causes it to fall.

Over-seeding would result in wider distribution of the limited moisture particles on the silver iodide, preventing it from forming heavy enough drops to fall.

Water Shortage In Kansas Acute

WICHITA, Kan., June 16—(AP)—A serious water shortage threatened this city of 170,000 today after a 48-inch main developed its third break in four days. The main is the only line bringing water to the city proper.

Officials of Boeing, Beech and Cessna aircraft companies reported their plants would be closed all or part of the day. They employ about 45,000 persons.

Water from wells is available for emergency use but is not sufficient to meet all the city's needs.

Excessive watering of gardens and lawns during the current dry spell was blamed for the shortage.

Texas boasts of more airports than any other state in the U.S.

Atom Bomb Helps Relieve Plight Of Navajos; They Mine Uranium

By GORDON G. GAUSS

NAVAJO RESERVATION, Ariz.—Uranium destined for atomic bombs is helping relieve the plight of the Navajos, proud Indians whose poverty has come in for nationwide attention.

As yet, it can't be said to be enriching them—not by ordinary standards. But it is providing jobs for a good many.

It is putting some in position to collect royalties. It is dropping money into the tribal coffers to help develop the primitive land. And the end is not in sight.

"I suppose uranium stands a chance of making some millionaires among the Indians but the odds are against it," theorized one of the region's best known white men.

He is Harry Goulding who operates a trading post and tourist spot in Monument Valley, isolated region of spectacular red rocks along the Utah-Arizona border far from main roads.

"URANIUM mining has been a God-send for these Indians," Goulding said. "It has brought a payroll in here and it has given them a vocation."

Monument Mine, No. 2, is the largest uranium operation in the United States. So few outsiders have seen it, the property is reputed to be a "secret" mine, but it isn't.

From Mexican Hat, Utah, the mine is 25 miles southeast. But the usual direction given to a newcomer is this: "When you've wandered a day and a half in the reservation, you're probably there."

Operated by Vanadium Corp. of America, Monument No. 2 employs Indians in all jobs below the supervisory level. Many of them are unable to speak even the rudiments of English. Nearby properties operated by the Climax Uranium Co. also largely employ Indians.

The big Monument No. 2 mine lies at the crest of a windswept hill of blowing sand.

It has ore seams from 5 to 22 feet thick. Workings are on two levels—unusual in uranium properties—and there is some strip mining at the surface. There is 1½ miles of tunnels.

Found when a Navajo brought a chunk of ore to Goulding's post, the mine has been operated intensively only about five years.

Most of the Indians working here—currently about 80—learned mining on the spot.

"We put foremen right along side of them to teach them," VCA vice-president Dennis Viles said. "We stay with them until they learn. They're quick to catch on, considering the business is new to them. They're faithful."

EVIDENCES of the Navajos' artistic ability were visible in the mine. The sand-colored tunnels were decorated at many places with realistic black drawings smudged onto the rock with the flame of carbide lamps.

Most of the workers live on the side of the long hill in tiny homes surrounded by cactus and sagebrush. Actually, 300 people live in the vicinity, many of them children.

Goulding pointed out with pride that some Indians have abandoned the round, squat hogans for cabins. But the doors almost invariably face east because Navajo tradition requires this so that the first rays of the rising sun can enter the home.

Many persons believe the Indians resent the white man's opening of the mines, but Goulding says, "I've found the Indians to be very progressive-minded. Anything that will help them, they'll go along with. Of course they have to be convinced."

One full-blooded Navajo, Cato Sells, operates sizeable uranium properties in the Lukachukai and Carrizo Mountains, some as an individual and some with the Climax Co.

So far uranium has been found only in the sparsely settled northern part of the reservation. Indians may now file individual claims and then lease them to others with approval of the tribal council. A sizeable royalty goes to tribal funds in each instance.

Texas Eastern Uses Exacting Tests and Special Materials to Keep Natural Gas Arteries in Top Condition

Science has developed for the natural gas industry many ways to protect pipelines underground. Texas Eastern puts these scientific methods to work on its existing and new pipelines.

Today pipelines are welded. The big protection job starts here. Inspectors examine welds by X-ray or radium photography to be sure they are perfect.

The welded steel pipe—before it is put in the ground—is scraped, coated, insulated, and wrapped for protection against corrosion. Then these layers of enamel, glass fiber, and paper are inspected electrically to be sure they are without flaw. Finally, to be extra certain, Texas Eastern buries with the pipeline—in acid-soil areas—electric devices that ward off corrosion.

Texas Eastern is continually adopting new scientific developments—such as the latest tough concrete coating for underwater pipelines—to protect its vital gas arteries that run through your area.

Wheat, Fruit Farmers Vie In Rain War

Each Bombarding Clouds To Bring Or Prevent Moisture

YAKIMA, Wash., June 16—(AP)—Cloud formations moving toward Central Washington's Yakima and Wenatchee valleys are being bombarded daily in secret, opposing experiments financed by wheat growers who want rain and fruit farmers who don't.

One set of attacks is designed to punch holes in the clouds to bring rain. The other seeks to disperse the clouds without rainfall. Both sides are secretive about the operations, but Yakima and Wenatchee newspapers reported the "wet" and "dry" campaigns were underway, with the drys claiming preliminary victory. It's a critical time for both, with rain needed in the wheat fields and the cherry harvest starting. Rain causes ripening cherries to split and damages other "soft fruits" at harvest time.

Farmers in Central Washington's big wheat producing district hired the Water Resources Corporation of Denver as a rainmaker the last two years.

THE FIRM uses ground generators principally to bombard clouds with silver iodide, but cherry growers here said they heard rainmakers also were operating from planes.

Soft fruit growers, blaming rainmakers for damage to their crops last year, hired an anti-rainmaker this year. Growers voted to assess themselves $1 a ton of cherries, and Jack M. Hubbard, Olympia, Wash., meteorologist, was hired to ward off the rain.

Hubbard has been mysterious about his operations, methods and equipment, but the Yakima Republic reported he was "dashing from point to point in the valley to aid his ground forces as black clouds threaten."

Dr. Phil E. Church, University of Washington meteorologist, said the anti-rainmakers probably would use the same method as the rainmakers, only stronger.

He said the likely method would be to over-seed. Successful seeding depends on bombarding clouds with silver iodide which collects moisture particles until their weight causes it to fall.

Over-seeding would result in wider distribution of the limited moisture particles on the silver iodide, preventing it from forming heavy enough drops to fall.

Water Shortage In Kansas Acute

WICHITA, Kan., June 16—(AP)—A serious water shortage threatened this city of 170,000 today after a 48-inch main developed its third break in four days. The main is the only line bringing water to the city proper.

Officials of Boeing, Beech and Cessna aircraft companies reported their plants would be closed all or part of the day. They employ about 45,000 persons.

Water from wells is available for emergency use but is not sufficient to meet all the city's needs.

Excessive watering of gardens and lawns during the current dry spell was blamed for the shortage.

Texas boasts of more airports than any other state in the U.S.

Atom Bomb Helps Relieve Plight Of Navajos; They Mine Uranium

By GORDON G. GAUSS

NAVAJO RESERVATION, Ariz.—Uranium destined for atomic bombs is helping relieve the plight of the Navajos, proud Indians whose poverty has come in for nationwide attention.

As yet, it can't be said to be enriching them—not by ordinary standards. But it is providing jobs for a good many.

It is putting some in position to collect royalties. It is dropping money into the tribal coffers to help develop the primitive land. And the end is not in sight.

"I suppose uranium stands a chance of making some millionaires among the Indians but the odds are against it," theorized one of the region's best known white men.

He is Harry Goulding who operates a trading post and tourist spot in Monument Valley, isolated region of spectacular red rocks along the Utah-Arizona border far from main roads.

"URANIUM mining has been a God-send for these Indians," Goulding said. "It has brought a payroll in here and it has given them a vocation."

Monument Mine, No. 2, is the largest uranium operation in the United States. So few outsiders have seen it, the property is reputed to be a "secret" mine, but it isn't.

From Mexican Hat, Utah, the mine is 25 miles southeast. But the usual direction given to a newcomer is this: "When you've wandered

a day and a half in the reservation, you're probably there."

Operated by Vanadium Corp. of America, Monument No. 2 employs Indians in all jobs below the supervisory level. Many of them are unable to speak even the rudiments of English. Nearby properties operated by the Climax Uranium Co. also largely employ Indians.

Total Freeze On New Beer Permits Asked

State Liquor Chief
Says Saturation
Point Now Reached

COLUMBUS, June 16—(P)—Ohio Liquor Director William C. Bryant wants a complete freeze restored on new beer and wine permits.

He plans to recommend it to the state board of liquor control next month. It will be up to the board to decide whether to follow Bryant's request.

"Ohio has reached the saturation point," Bryant said. He referred to the number of beer and liquor spots. "Something has got to be done to halt the flood of new beer and wine licenses or we will have rum rows and more enforcement problems," the director asserted.

The liquor department has been issuing beer and wine carry-out and by-the-glass permits to qualified applicants since last February. Bryant said 2,278 new spots received licenses and that 1,692 applications are pending.

THE DEPARTMENT receives about 140 applications for new beer and wine permits every week, Bryant estimated. "Things will get out of hand if they keep going the way they have been," the director observed.

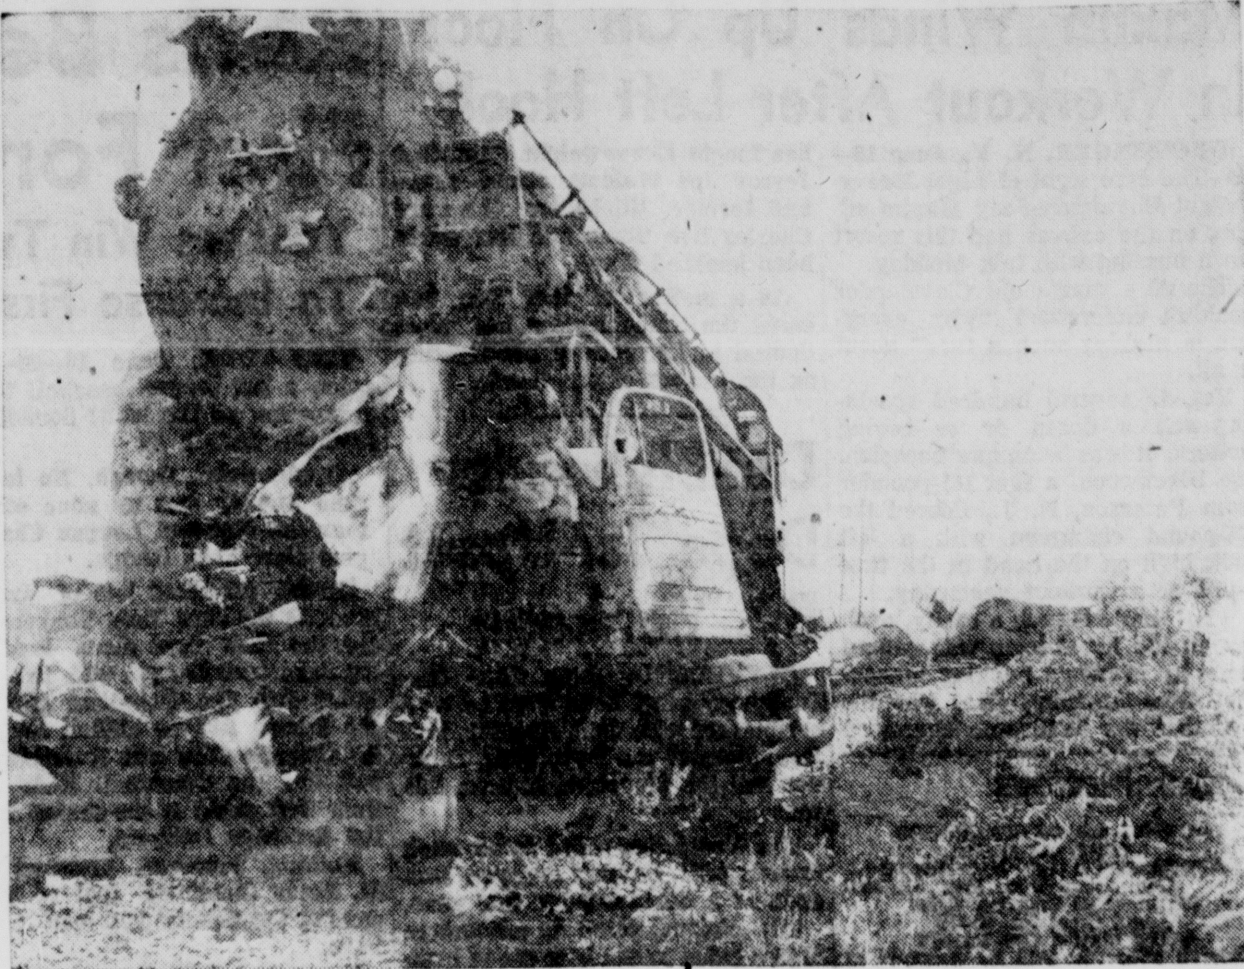

He said Ohio now has 21,000 retail liquor and beer spots of all types. Those places hold a total of 38,000 permits. Many bars have several types of permits.

The liquor board put a freeze on all new beer and liquor permits April 11, 1949. It removed the freeze on beer and wine licenses last February but kept it on hard-liquor permits.

The action followed long court litigation. When the board sought to lift the beer and wine freeze last July, the entire freeze regulation came under court attack. Reports indicated hard-liquor people backed the suit.

The liquor board won out, although the courts knocked out a regulation banning acceptance of applications. The department had been returning all applications since the freeze. Now it accepts and processes applications but still does not issue hard-liquor licenses.

In view of the board's record in court battles, a new freeze regulation would stick if adopted, Bryant speculated.

A TRUCK DRIVER is burned to death, a 23-car Nickel Plate railroad freight train is derailed and three train crewmen are injured in a crossing crash south of Findlay, O. The dead man was identified as Charles Clingan of Cleveland. The burned trainmen were taken to Bluffton hospital. (International)

2 Generations Needed To Tell A-Bomb Effect

SAN FRANCISCO, June 16—(P)—Two American scientists, arriving here Friday night from Japan, believe it will be at least two generations before we know the full effects of the Hiroshima atom bomb burst on human beings.

They were Dr. Warner Wells of Duke University and Dr. Paul Carson of the Brookhaven National Laboratory, returning after two years work with the atomic bomb Casualty Commission in Japan.

"Some basic changes in tissue structures are evident in the victims of the Hiroshima blast," Dr. Wells said. "Some possible bone and bone formation changes also appear, but that's about as far as firm evidence goes."

"Moreover," he added, "so far as genetic and hereditary traits being affected by exposure to radio-active elements are concerned, we'll have to wait for at least 50 years before we can know definitely what the results are."

ITS ENGINE ADDS MUSCLE TO EVERY DROP OF GAS!

To many owners, the mighty 180 H.P. V-8 engine that powers the Chrysler New Yorker is the most remarkable feature of this remarkable car. It is certainly the most discussed automobile engine in many, many years.

This is the engine with hemispherical combustion chambers... the engine that gets more power out of every drop of gas. And non-premium gas at that!

Actually, it puts you in control of more power than you'll probably ever need use. You'll sense this... together with its unequalled response... the very first yards you drive. It runs smoother, more quietly, and with less wear than any other engine ever built into an American automobile.

... and it makes driving (both cruising and the short runs) more fun than you have ever known it to be!

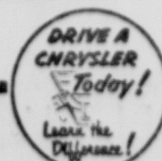

But that's not all. Along with this engine there are scores of other reasons, too, for driving a New Yorker before resolving on any new car. Like Full-time Power Steering that makes steering five times easier... and your control fine times greater... than in ordinary cars. Like Power Brakes that cut needed pedal pressure by as much as two-thirds.

Like Oriflow shock absorbers that make even bad roads feel "newly paved"... restful chair-high seats... big, wide-opening doors... big windows that let you see more.

It's true... until you drive a Chrysler New Yorker you won't know what you're missing. Why not stop in today?

Car Appearance Doesn't Count

ATLANTA (AP)—Georgia's Court of Appeals recently held a Moultrie, Ga. man could recover $1,000 from an automobile dealer because a car the latter sold as a 1949 model actually was a 1948 model.

The dealer's defense: the physical appearance of the 1948 and 1949 models of the car (Hudson) varied so little that he was unable to tell them apart and honestly believed he was selling a 1949 model.

2 Generations Needed To Tell A-Bomb Effect

SAN FRANCISCO, June 16.—(P)—Two American scientists, arriving here Friday night from Japan, believe it will be at least two generations before we know the full effects of the Hiroshima atom bomb burst on human beings.

They were Dr. Warner Wells of Duke University and Dr. Paul Carson of the Brookhaven National Laboratory, returning after two years work with the atomic bomb Casualty Commission in Japan.

"Some basic changes in tissue structures are evident in the victims of the Hiroshima blast," Dr. Wells said. "Some possible bone and bone formation changes also appear, but that's about as far as firm evidence goes."

"Moreover," he added, "so far as genetic and hereditary traits being affected by exposure to radio-active elements are concerned, we'll have to wait for at least 50 years before we can know definitely what the results are."

ITS ENGINE ADDS MUSCLE TO EVERY DROP OF GAS!

To many owners, the mighty 180 H.P. V-8 engine that powers the Chrysler New Yorker is the most remarkable feature of this remarkable car. It is certainly the most discussed automobile engine in many, many years.

This is the engine with hemispherical combustion chambers... the engine that gets more power out of every drop of gas. And non-premium gas at that!

Actually, it puts you in control of more power than you'll probably ever need use. You'll sense this... together with its unequalled response... the very first yards you drive. It runs smoother, more quietly, and with less wear than any other engine ever built into an American automobile.

...and it makes driving (both cruising and the short runs) more fun than you have ever known it to be!

But that's not all. Along with this engine there are scores of other reasons, too, for driving a New Yorker before resolving on any new car. Like Full-time Power Steering that makes steering five times easier... and your control five times greater... than in ordinary cars. Like Power Brakes that cut needed pedal pressure by as much as two-thirds.

Like Oriflow shock absorbers that make even bad roads feel "newly paved"... restful chair-high seats... big, wide-opening doors... big windows that let you see more.

It's true... until you drive a Chrysler New Yorker you won't know what you're missing. Why not stop in today?

Maxim Winds Up On Floor In Workout After Left Hook

GROSSINGER, N. Y., June 16—The rare sight of Light Heavyweight Champion Joey Maxim fighting in the ring was a sight to behold. Maxim, who has never been knocked down, was seen in a workout after a left hook from a trainer.

Yet, to several hundred spectators and a dozen or so boxing writers, it was a unique occasion. Joe Blackwood, a fast 161-pounder from Paterson, N. J., floored the 175-pound champion with a left hook high on the head in the first round of a workout yesterday.

What made it such a rarity, even though the knockdown was caused more by Maxim's backing maneuvers than anything else, was the fact that the handsome champion

Maxim Winds Up On Floor In Workout After Left Hook

GROSSINGER, N. Y., June 16—(AP)—The rare sight of Light Heavyweight Champion Joey Maxim sitting on the canvas had this resort town buzzing with talk Monday.

The 30-year-old Clevelander couldn't understand "why everyone is making such a fuss" about it.

Yet, to several hundred spectators and a dozen or so boxing writers, it was a unique occasion. Joe Blackwood, a fast 161-pounder from Paterson, N. J., floored the 175-pound champion with a left hook high on the head in the first round of a workout yesterday.

What made it such a rarity, even though the knockdown was caused more by Maxim's backing maneuvers than anything else, was the fact that the handsome champion

Reds Pick Up New Pitcher In Brooklyn

Podbielan Joins Team When It Goes To Boston

BROOKLYN, June 16 — (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds will leave Brooklyn today with a new pitcher on their roster and a Jack-the-Giant-Killer smile on their faces.

The Reds—with a slight boost from old man law of averages—finally broke the jinx the Dodgers have held over them all season.

They whipped the league-leaders 7-4 Sunday in salvaging the final game of a three-game series at Ebbets Field. The victory shattered Brooklyn's boast of 10 straight wins without a setback over the Rhinelanders.

The Cincinnatians will take along new pitcher Bud Podbielan when they go to Boston for a three-game set with the Braves. Gabe Paul, the swap-swami general manager of the Reds, announced Podbielan's purchase from the Dodgers Sunday—the last day of the trading season. Paul sold Bud Byerly outright to St. Paul, a Dodger farm club in the American Association.

EWELL Blackwell unexpectedly received credit for his second win against seven losses Sunday. He had given up all four Dodger runs and the Reds were trailing 4-1 when Blackie was yanked for a pinch-hitter in the big Redleg splurge in the seventh inning.

Loser Ben Wade faced four Cincinnati batters in that hopped-up seventh without retiring a man. Two singles and a walk loaded the sacks before Bobby Adams blasted a single for two runs. John Ruthenford came on for Wade, but the Ohioans kept right on.

Grady Hatton slammed a three-two pitch into the centerfield stands for his eighth homer and three more runs. When Willard Marshall doubled, Billy Loes replaced Ruthenford. Ted Kluszewski's single scored Marshall and Hank Edwards also singled before Andy Seminick recorded Cincinnati's first out and Wally Westlake hit into an inning-ending double play.

Umpire Walkout Threatens League

MORGANTON, N. C., June 16 — (AP)—When the six teams in the Class D Western Carolina League take the field Monday night there will be nobody there to cry "play ball." Sunday all seven of the loop's umpires quit in professional baseball's first wholesale resignation by the men in blue.

League President Earl Franklin said the umpires hadn't given any specific reason for quitting.

"We're going ahead with our schedule, anyway—even if we have to use players for umpires," he added.

Indications were the arbiters' main complaint concerned the lifting of suspensions on Lincolnton Manager Bobby Beal and Business Manager Joe Ross. Both men were fined and suspended after an argument in a game last Wednesday, but the ban remained in effect for just one day.

Country Club Golfers Tie In Match

A 16-man Pickaway Country Club golf team fought to a tie with Washington C.H. golfers Sunday over the local fairways.

Both teams ended the sweltering match with 24 points each, while one golfer from each team forfeited in favor of sitting in the shade.

Bob Friece and C. C. Saxton were top shooters for Circleville in the match, registering 75's for the 18-hole test. Washington's F. Truitt was medalist for the day with 71.

Saxton, however, shot a practice round Sunday morning to register a four-under-par 68, lowest score of the season to date at the club.

Next contest on tap for the Country Clubbers is July 9, when they will travel to Wilmington. Results of Sunday's match here follow:

ELMONT, N. Y., June 16 — (AP)—A young groom and between 12 and 30 horses were killed early Monday when fire destroyed part of a barn at Belmont Park racetrack.

Screams of the burning horses could be heard a mile away, Long Island residents said.

The groom, tentatively identified as Alfred Mitchell, about 19, of Laurel, Md., was trapped in the flames and burned to a crisp while attempting to save a horse from the blazing barn. He had been sleeping in a stall.

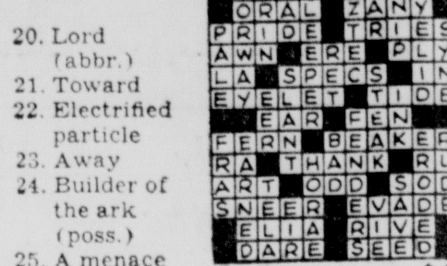

Most of the horses burned were reported to be jumpers, trained by Miss Judy Johnson.

Fifty of the 100 stalls in the burned barn were destroyed. Flames burst 50 or more feet high. The fire, of undetermined origin, was discovered about 1:25 a. m.

Belmont Park closed last week and New York City racing shifted to the Aqueduct Track.

National Open Winner Can't Play In PGA

DALLAS, June 16 — (AP)—Julius Boros, the Connecticut Yankee who ended Ben Hogan's dominance of the nation's golf, was en route to New England Monday for a reunion with relatives while most of his colleagues along the tournament trail moved into Louisville, Ky., for the National PGA.

Boros took a check for $4,000, the loot gained in winning the national open here Saturday, with him. He shot one-over-par 281 for the 72 holes.

Big Jules won't play in the PGA for the simple reason that he isn't eligible—he has been a professional less than three years and you have to be one five years to get into that tournament.

Only one of the top four men in the open will play at Louisville. Hogan, whose 286 for 72 holes placed third and lost him the title for the first time in four tries, won't play any more tournaments this year. Johnny Bulla, who was fourth with 287, is passing up Louisville.

Ed Oliver, golf's rotund man who finished second with 285, is due to play in the PGA. Oliver was almost as big a surprise as Boros. But like Julius, Oliver's putting put him across. He sank a 45-foot putt on the eighteenth green in each of Saturday's last two rounds.

Or propaganda might be of the quality of a press conference at which a candidate exhibits himself with the object of putting over a personality, an idea or a movement.

Mr. Truman often uses the press conference to swat Congress, that being his greatest delight. He does it cleverly, although he hops over facts with rare agility.

Senator Taft is blunt, talks fast, and often sounds like a statistical digest. He says what he means, which often, in this life, involves a penalty. He cannot be misquoted because his replies are sharp and unhesitant.

The Eisenhower television shows gave me a chance to see how he does it and I must say that it is not sharp enough. The fact do not stand clear. For instance, I would have liked to have asked General Eisenhower why he tried to suppress the news of the armistice in World War II.

But just asking the one question would not have brought the full answer. The point would have to be argued if the truth were to be made fully available.

Had any one reporter taken the time to do that, the television showmen would have murdered him. Therefore, if television is to be added to the press conference, the press conference will die.

In its place will come something theatrical and reporters will have to go back to the honest business of digging.

Addie Wertman, Charles Brown 'Healthiest' In County

Pair To Seek State Honors In Ohio Fair

Both Winners In Club Work For Nine Years

Addie Wertman, 16, of 381 East Franklin street, and Charles Brown, 16, of Circleville Route 2 are Pickaway County's "healthiest" 4-H Club members for 1952.

The couple was named for the honor Saturday following a final screening of club and personal records by county health and extension workers.

Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner, participated with County Extension Agent Larry Best and members of the extension service staff in the final decisions for the 1952 health achievement winners.

Miss Wertman and Brown will represent Pickaway County in competition for state laurels in this year's Ohio State Fair.

MISS WERTMAN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Berman Wertman, was almost speechless when notified by The Herald she had been adjudged the winner from among the six girl finalists.

"Gee, I don't know what to say," she said. "It's a great honor and I sure feel pretty good about it."

Preparing for her senior year next fall in Circleville high school, Miss Wertman has been active in 4-H club work for nine years, during which she attended 4-H camp and served as counselor for two years.

She has taken junior leadership for the last two years. Miss Wertman's average for her nine years in club work has been "A" grade.

In addition to serving as president of the Circle Sew Straight 4-H club for the last two years, she helped organize another club, Eight Little Stitches.

Miss Wertman's mother serves as advisor to the Circle Sew Straight club.

Brown is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Brown and will enter his senior year next fall at Williamsport high school.

He has been active in 4-H club activity for nearly nine years also.

BROWN HAS specialized in Angus beef breeding for several years in connection with his 4-H efforts, and in school was among those designated for membership in the county honor society.

Other county 4-H Clubbers who advanced to the finals in this year's contest were: Barbara Storer, 17, of Monroe Township; Martha Neff, 16, of Monroe Township; Eleanor

State's Vault Loaded With 'Chicken Feed'

COLUMBUS, June 16 — There's a lot of "chicken feed" in the state treasury's new vault and there will be a lot more come state fair time.

Officials are getting in a store of pennies, nickels and dimes for making change. They now have $11,000 worth. By fair time it will total $50,000.

It seems that you can't just order $50,000 worth of change from banks and get it immediately. It takes weeks and weeks to accumulate such a hoard. That's why officials have started early.

The newly installed vault is in the basement of the Statehouse under the present strongroom. The old vault was overflowing with more than $900 million worth of securities and State Treasurer Roger W. Tracy had to have a place to put them.

So Tracy got a new vault containing 60 tons of steel and an elevator between the first floor and basement for about $100,000. Already about $400 million in securities have been transferred to the basement vault—along with the "chicken feed."

No Bones Broken In 1,500 Ft. Fall

LAKE ARROWHEAD, Calif., June 16 — A 10-year-old boy who tumbled down a 1,500-foot cliff and didn't break a bone was recovering today.

Attendants at Santa Anita Hospital said Kenneth Wright Jr. suffered a concussion, cuts and bruises and possible internal injuries in his fall yesterday but is expected to be all right.

Kenneth, of Compton, Calif., was playing atop the cliff with two companions when he slipped. His playmates, Ralph and Gary Sangster, said he dropped 200 feet virtually straight down, landing on a nearly vertical rockslide more than 1,000 feet long.

He rolled and tumbled down the slide then took another drop and roll before reaching the foot of the cliff.

There never were any snakes in Ireland, according to the American Museum of Natural History. After the last ice age of 25,000 years ago, the ice sheet covering most of the northern hemisphere retreated. In so doing it made an island of Ireland, thus stopping snakes of the continent from crossing over.

Births Nearly Double Deaths In City, County

Births again nearly doubled deaths during May in Pickaway County.

Combined reports from county and city health offices show 40

births were registered in the county last month while only 23 deaths were recorded.

Of the total births, 32 were in Circleville and eight in the rural area. The city's births consisted of 17 boys and 15 girls, while the county's births were evenly divided with four boys and four girls.

In deaths, 11 occurred in the city last month and 12, one of which occurred in Orient, were recorded in the county.

THE 61-70-year-old age range contained the largest number of deaths during the month, while the 71-80 bracket was next with six.

Complete age range during the month was as follows: one-10-years-old, one; 41-50-years-old, one; 51-60-years-old, one; 61-70-years-old, eight; 71-80-years-old, six; 81-

90-years-old, three; and 91-100-years-old, one.
